More Whales, Not Important

A New Baby Born

No Brain Works 8 Hours

One Jew's Short Story

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

North of the little Azores, littlest in the Atlantic, passengers saw a school of whales—250 of them, the captain said—rolling and spouting on their way north.

Once that would have been important to the whole world, as important as is now the discovery of new oil fields.

Once the world depended on whale oil for light, and wondered what it would do when whales died out. Now it depends on oil for light and power largely and wonders what it will do when oil gives out.

And all the while the great lamp is burning overhead, reminding us that light and power are there unlimited, to be used during millions of years that the earth still has to carry us.

A new steel baby trust is born, or almost. The doctors and nurses are busy.

The public, compelled to adopt the infant, knows vaguely what kind of baby it has. There will be $79,000,000 of bonds, $50,000,000 of preferred stock, $00,000 shares of common stock with "no par value."

That expression, "no par value," is appropriate. Watch the baby. Be careful how you buy that "no par value" stuff. The man who not all dead that bought common stock of the big steel company at 50 and saw it go to 8. Later it went above 100, but the original buyers didn't go with it.

What will the other steel baby, grown to man's estate with Judge Gary as wet nurse and financial nurse, do about the new steel baby that is aborning?

Is there room for two of the same size in the financial jungle? The big trust has encouraged little independent companies. They were no menace and they lent respectability in the way of competition. But what about a big company—a rival? There may be an interesting steel fight.

The legal midwives, Chadbourne, Levy Mayer and others, sitting around the bedside of the new baby, announce that securities issued will require $1.41 per ingot ton over the above and the overhead, to meet fixed charges before anything can go to the common stock. That is the part that makes Judge Gary laugh.

Wittenberg College in Ohio announces an eight-hour study day. There will be no time clocks, but the faculty will give out work compelling students to work at least eight hours. The faculty will learn that it can't be done. You can keep a man swinging a pickaxe for eight hours or for ten—your foreman can watch that.

The work done in study is done inside the skull. You can't watch that.

There is no brain living, never has been one, that could do actual REAL mental work for eight hours every day.

Routine work, figuring out mathematical problems, etc., can be done for eight hours or longer, but even that is rare and dangerous.

New York will spend one million dollars on an art museum to hold the magnificent collections given to the city by Benjamin Altman.

Who is Benjamin Altman? He is a merchant worn out with hard work, now lying in his grave.

He was a poor, unknown Jew who carried on his back to his little store in Sixth avenue the goods that he bought for cash. He is the man that built a magnificent Temple of Commerce on Fifth avenue in New York, and for whose art collections, given to all of the people, New York now builds another temple.

He spent his life investing his money with all the wisdom of a great buyer in the noblest works of art, and gave the result of his life's work to the people that gave him his wealth.

Benjamin Altman is one of the Jews that Harvard University and some other institutions think should be admitted to universities in "limited numbers."

Opponents of the soldiers' bonus say three billions would be required. Outrageous, they say. The money could never be had.

You read that on the same day loans for speculation in Wall Street were one thousand five hundred million dollars—half the amount needed for the bonus.

They can't find three billions to pay soldiers that went to war, but on any sunny day can find half that amount to enable gentlemen to gamble or invest in stocks. It's another occasion for reprinting Prudhomme's warning, "Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, republics by wealth."

Money means power, also liberty, even in a republic. A young man named Ward informed the authorities that he had killed a man because he was blackmailed. There was nothing but his own word to prove it. He put up cash bail and went free.

Another man named Cunning-

FLAYED IN HOUSE AS RENEGADE TO RACE

Silbert, Speaking on "Synagogue," Calls Him Menace to Civilization

Simon Swig, former vice-president of the closed Tremont Trust Company, was branded in the House of Representatives today as a "menace to civilization," a "renegade" and "an arch criminal."

The man who called the former banker these harsh names was Representative Coleman Silbert, a Jew and Boston attorney.

The attack on Mr. Swig was made during an address of thanks to the House for the passage of the bill providing for the removal of Sargent's famous picture, "The Synagogue," from the Boston Public Library.

Rising in his place in the House, Representative Silbert said:

"I want to take this final opportunity to thank the members of this House for the spirit of tolerance, in keeping with the American tradition, in passing this bill.

"This action is in marked contrast with the attitude of that infamous wretch who does not hesitate to prostitute his own religious faith for selfish reasons; who would stir up class hatred; who would debase this country, and whose recent advent into the journalistic field has caused a stench over the entire community.

"From reliable sources I have learned that this man has lobbied against this bill.

"I brand Simon Swig as an arch criminal, a renegade, as a menace to civilization and to Americanism.

"Every honorable person who loves his country and its ideals should repudiate him as a man without a country or a race."

Wife Who Took Stand Against Husband

MRS. MINNIE PAPPAS

While testifying against her husband, Paul Pappas, on trial for murder, Mrs. Pappas kept her eyes averted from the prisoner's cage, where Pappas, nervously clutching the rail, kept his eyes fixed upon her. Previously there had been testimony that Mrs. Pappas had an intense fear of her husband.

Mrs. Downes' Story of Raid

WOMAN'S STORY OF RAID

Liquor Found in Home After Academy Parties Not Hers, Mrs. Downes Insists

Mrs. Herbert W. W. Downes, wife of the church organist and director of music in the Haverhill public schools, arrested in a raid by "dry" officials and the Haverhill police on a charge of violating the "dry" law, today denied ownership of the liquor found in the house.

Mr. Downes, arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes in Boston, was given a secret hearing, after which Prohibition Enforcement Agent James P. Roberts and Mr. Downes' attorney, former Judge John J. Ryan, issued a statement.

"Commissioner Hayes refused to issue a warrant against Mr. Downes," it said, "because he regarded Mr. Downes as the victim of circumstances."

None of the parties to the case would make any explanation of the meaning of the phase "victim of circumstances."

MRS. DOWNES' STORY.

According to Mr. Roberts' tales of "high jinx" and "gay parties" given by students of the Bradford Academy, oldest institution of learning for women in New England, were the cause of the raid on the house of the organist.

The girls were said to have been "more than merry" and to have been "armed" with silver liquor flasks which they carried in their stockings, and which were refilled when empty at 42 each at the Downes home.

All of this Mrs. Downes indignantly denied when interviewed by a reporter for the Boston American today.

She declared that Miss Catherine Durffee, a former graduate of the Bradford Academy, employed by Mr. Roberts to aid him in running down the truth of th reports about the gay student parties had been "blind drunk" when she called at the Downes home Wednesday morning at 1:30.

ADAM AND EVE PLEAD GUILTY

Boston Pair Fined $350 for Violating Game Laws of Maine

Houlton, Me., June 9.—A plea of guilty to five charges of violation of the State game laws was made today in the Municipal Court by Carl A. Sutter and his wife of Boston, whose six weeks' retreat into the virgin forests of Aroostook County as the "modern Adam and Eve" was interrupted by their arrest in Township 9, Range 3, near Howe Brook.

The fines and costs imposed totalled $354.15. They were given until a certain hour to pay or enter an appeal to the Supreme Court from the sentences imposed.

It was understood that Mrs. Sutter pleaded guilty to all five counts through a misunderstanding, and that it was on this account that an appeal was being considered. They were charged with camping and kindling fires without the services of a registered guide, killing a deer and having parts of it in their possession, hunting without a license, flashlighting.

Furs This Sizzling Week Are Still in Fashion Here

Vanity of vanities! With the old thermometer bobbing around 90 degrees, representing the hottest first week in June ever known, young women of Boston are wearing furs. Gracious goodness! But they say they are only Summer furs. Some wear them around their necks, and others fling them on their arm.

PHYSICIAN ATTENDS ONE BOY

Parents Charge Watertown Lad Underwent Thirty-Minute Attack

Following charges that her thirteen-year-old son, John A. Stone, had been beaten almost into unconsciousness by his teacher, Miss Alice May, Mrs. August S. Stone of Watertown today said that she would produce evidence to prove that several other pupils of Miss May had been viciously chastised by the teacher.

Miss May is a teacher in the fifth grade of the Marshall Spring School of Watertown.

In the alleged beating of the Stone boy she is charged with having been aided by Miss Hollys R. Brown, teacher of the fourth grade.

Miss May's class of about forty pupils, the mother of John charges, was dismissed yesterday in order that there would be no witnesses to the beating of her son—a beating, she says, that brought about injuries which required the attentions of Dr. Leon G. Rondeau of Boston.

COVERED WITH BLOOD.

The attack of the boy, Mrs. Stone told a reporter of the Boston American, lasted for half an hour. She found —ohn covered with blood.

The father of the boy, August Stone, has filed charges with the superintendent of Watertown schools. The matter came up also before Judge Samuel P. Abbott in the Waltham District Court. Judge Abbott, after hearing the charges of the parent, said he would take the matter under advisement.

Four times before, Mrs. Stone said, Miss May has beaten her son. She claims that mothers of the children have complained that the children were being brutally chastised by the teacher.

A reporter of the Boston American today found John with visible marks of a beating. There were black and blue bruises all over his face, hands, legs and body. One eye was badly swollen, there were finger marks on his throat. These marks were visible twenty-four hours after the alleged beating had been administered.

THE BOY'S STORY.

"One of the girls in the class had

SON OF SWIG IS HELD ON GIRLS' CHARGES

Taunton, June 9.—Edward J. Swig, son of Simon Swig, former vice-president of the Tremont Trust Company, Boston, today in court faced two girls, one twelve years old, the other eighteen, who charge that he attacked them in his auto in a lonely spot in Mayflower Hill (Continued).

He was held in $1100 for trial next Friday, when the girls, one a grammar school pupil, and the other a high school senior, are expected to again face him in court and tell their stories.

Swig did not plead, his attorney, Irving Bertrann, who is associate counsel with Judge Louis B. Swig, the defendant's brother, asking Judge Frederick E. Aiseln for a

$3,000 REWARD OFFERED FOR SLAYER OF POLICEMAN

A reward of $500 will be paid by the Boston American for exclusive information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the slayer or slayers of Patrolman Emery H. Farrington of the Milton police force. Visit or telephone the City Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Main 5180.

The Milton authorities also announce that citizens have subscribed $2,500 additional reward, making a total of $3,000.

Police investigation today eliminated several supposed clews to the slayers of Patrolman Farrington. The identity of the drivers of the mysterious Rhode Island car have been established, and their innocence of any connection with the crime established.

The bottle and glass found near the stolen auto of Morris Rosenberg, in the rear of which the victim's body lay, have been found to belong to osenberg himself, who has conferred with the police and gone over with them his movements on Wednesday night, when his machine was stolen and the officer was fatally shot.

The authorities are inclined to regard the blue vest and brown sweater found in the car as of con-

PAPPAS FEARED DETECTIVES, WIFE SAYS

The extremely unusual spectacle of a wife testifying against her husband in a murder case was presented in the Superior Court today when Mrs. Laura Hilda Minnie Brown Pappas, took the stand against her husband, Paul Pappas, charged with the murder of Mrs. Alice Arsenault.

Mrs. Pappas, a very small, slight woman, was dressed in a brown suit, with a black straw hat. She speaks with a decided English accent.

Previous testimony had been to the effect that she greatly feared her husband. Not once while testifying did she glance in his direction, although he, within the prisoner's cage, kept his eyes glued on her, while his hands nervously clutched the rail.

She said she married Pappas in Montreal December 4, 1920, Rev. Lindsay, an Episcopal minister, officiating. She declared Assistant District Attorney Fielding had warned her of her rights.

"But I am willing and intend to speak the truth, whatever is asked me," she said.

She first met Pappas in a bootblack shop at No. 8 Notre Dame street, Montreal, in July, 1920, while he was a fugitive from justice, wanted here for the Arsenault murder, she said. She next saw him at her home in September.

She was a widow with two children, one five years old and the other twenty-one months. Before her

WIFE OF PAPPAS IDENTIFIES RINGS

Mrs. Laura Pappas, wife of Paul Pappas on trial for the murder of Mrs. Alice Arsenault, today identified two rings, one as that Pappas gave her as a wedding band when they were married in Montreal, when he was a fugitive from justice, and the second as the engagement ring he put on her finger. Both rings had been identified previously by Adelard Arsenault, husband of the murdered woman, as the property of his wife.

a microscope and showed it to me. I told her I had one, too, and then Miss May rapped on the desk and wanted to know who was talking. Another boy told her it was me.

"Miss May told me to come to the desk, and I did. She asked me to sit on the floor. That's the way she likes to punish me—makes me sit on the floor. I had done it before, but this time I didn't want to do it, because the floor was oily and I had on a new gray suit. So I refused to sit on the floor.

"Miss May said she would make me sit down by force if I wouldn't do it. I refused again. Then she dismissed the class, and tried to force me to sit on the floor. She couldn't make me do it, so she left in the room and went out and got Miss Brown.

"Together they began to beat me. Miss May hit me on the head with a book. Then they began to beat me with their fists, and then they threw me to the floor, and when I was on the floor, they kicked me in the stomach."

Mrs. Rons said that Dr. Rondeau will testify that there were bruises on the boy's stomach caused by a kick. The mother continued the story of her son, saying:

"The other children heard John's screams and listened outside of the door. First thing I knew one of them came rushing over to the house, screaming that John's teacher was killing him. I came over to the school, and took my boy away.

"Such brutality is inexcusable. John is not and never has been a bad boy. The neighbors will vouch for that. Some time ago he was ill with whooping cough for three months, which made it necessary for my arms, trying to force me to the floor. They struck me in the face with their fists, and then they threw me to the floor, and when I was on the floor, they kicked me in the stomach."

"Such brutality is inexcusable. John is not and never has been a bad boy. The neighbors will vouch for that. Some time ago he was ill with whooping cough for three months, which made it necessary for him to remain in Miss May's class for two terms. For some reason or other, she seemed to take an intense dislike to him and beat him repeatedly. But never before as badly as she beat him this time. We have engaged a lawyer to see that this affair is threshed out."

Miss May was requested to give a statement, which she declined to do, saying:

Bees Eat Hootch Mash; It's Against the Dry Law

Astoria, Ore., June 9.—Bee bootleggers that manufacture alcohol-flavored honey are the latest violators of the Volstead act in Clatsop County.

New York, June 9.—Erwin Johann Wider, who was recently released from Sing Sing prison after serving a sentence for the theft of $675,000 from the New York branch of the Russo-Chinese Bank in 1912, was today sentenced to eleven years in State prison for the forgery of $47,000. He pleaded guilty.

LEGISLATURE FAILS TO END SESSION

The Legislature today abandoned hope of adjourning this week and at the close of two busy sessions of House and Senate adjourned to meet again on Monday.

Governor Cox left early today for Westfield, where he will speak tonight before the local Chamber of Commerce. A score of important bills remained on his desk for consideration. He offered to make a hurried trip back by auto and to attempt to clean up the business by midnight, but the legislative leaders decided that one or two more sessions would be necessary.

Representative Ezra W. Clark of Brockton today arose in the House and asked for an orderly consideration of business, pleading with the members "to avoid midnight sessions with the orgies that have disgraced the Legislature at times in the past."

Governor Cox's veto of the bill which appropriated about $185,000 for building of seven specific highways in the Cape district and western Massachusetts, was sustained by the House by a vote of 148 to 37.

The Senate adopted an order directing the State Department of Health to investigate the county tuberculosis hospitals. One of those to be investigated is the Essex County Tuberculosis Hospital at Middleton, whose managers were found by a Grand Jury to be extravagant and incompetent.

Governor Cox today vetoed the $50,000 appropriation for a new highway between Rutland and Holden. The veto was sustained, 163 to 19.

EXAMINING 'DEATH CAR' IN MILTON MURDER

SLAYERS LEAVE TELL-TALE PRINTS

siderable more value as clews than those found first. It has been established that these articles and the Ford wrench found in the machine were not in it when it was stolen in Boston.

REDEZVOUS OF GANG.

Reports that a few weeks ago a partially stripped auto was found in the woods of the reservation near Houghton's Pond, about two miles from the scene of the slaying, lead the police to believe that a gang operating from Randolph or nearby have been using various parts of the reservation to dismantle cars.

The activities of several Randolph youths are being carefully looked into by the various police now busy on the case.

It has been practically established by the authorities that there were no women in the case.

Despite reports to the contrary no one has ye found who has been able to give the police any clew to the movements of the stolen car from the time it left he Boson Opera House, until, almost stripped, it was found near the body of the slain officer.

Nor have the utmost efforts of the police been able to locate anyone in Boston, Milton, or nearby places who saw the gangsters driving away from the scene after the murder.

FINGERPRINT CLEWS.

After twenty-four hours' efforts, the police admit that their sole hopeful clew lies in the numerous fingerprints left on the dismantled car and its parts by the murderer and his gang.

Meantime, however, the movements of every known auto thief in Greater Boston are being carefully checked up by the police, who are hopeful, also, that the large rewards oZered for the slayer will result in his speedy capture.

Mrs. Farrington, widow of the slain officer, has collapsed, and is under a physician's care at her home.

The police are looking for an auto with Rhode Island registration plates, which disappeared in the direction of Quincy shortly before Farrington's body was discovered, carrying three young men. The registration number was given as 13,952.

Somewhere someone must have seen this car containing the gangmen fleeing for covor early yesterday morning.

The American joins with the police in assuming the task of finding (hat somebody, and step by step locating the murderer.

LAST PULL AT BOX.

Officer Farrington, who lived with his wife and two small sons in a neat cottage on Hillside street, some three miles from the Milton Police Station, left his home at 7:30 Wednesday night to report for duty.

After reporting at the station he went upon his boat—a particularly big one, covering a large area. He pulled his boxes at the regular intervals until 12:57.

At that hour he pulled his box at the corner of Dollar Lane and Canton avenue, a short distance from the spot where the shooting occurred. That was the last time his brother officers heard from him.

In the light of subsequent discoveries it is now believed that after pulling the box he walked up Canton avenue. Passing the entrance to the Blue Hill Reservation, at a spot where twin signs warn autoists that machines are not permitted to enter, he saw a light or haard a noise in the clearing near the shanty used in Summer as a police station by the Metropolitan Park Police.

Apparently he entered, passing through the trees and into the small clearing, masked 4by undergrowth and young trees from Canton street, the main road.

Whether he found more than one car here, how many men he found are subjects as yet for conjecture only.

DEATH HOVERS OVER PREMIER LENINE

Sinking From Cerebral Paralysis, Says Report to London

London, June 9. (By the Associated Press).—From sources which cannot be doubted, it is learned that Premier Lenine's condition up to a few days ago was regarded at Moscow as probably hopeless.

Advices state that his recent stroke was one of cerebral paralysis. He had lost speech entirely on June 1 and was expected to die any day. Those about him being certain that the end could not be prolonged beyond a few weeks.

The Premier was possessed with a mania before the shock came upon him and demanded that his villa outside of Moscow be furnished with iron bars. This nervous tension has begun to manifest itself in Febrile delirium, and had been progressive up to the time of the stroke.

In view of the Premier's grave condition, Foreign Minister Tchitcherin was ordered to return to Moscow urgently. Advices from Berlin, however, have stated that Tchitcherin did not consider the Premier's condition as grave as had been represented.

No mention of the gravity of Lenine's case has been made in Moscow and no bulletins had been issued up to June 1, although a later indefinite bulletin was issued.

Those at Moscow closely conversant with the political situation say it is impossible to determine as yet whether Trotzky would take control of the situation in the event of Lenine's passing, thus strengthening military Communism, or whether there would be an increase in the prevailing movement toward the Right, or moderate wing.

Twenty-one American women, each with three feathers in her hair, will be presented to Queen Mary tonight by Mrs. George Harvey. They will have very long trains and will practice pulling them up, hopping over them, turning them around, making deep curtisies, without falling over backwards. Wise bobbed young English girls will have a long hair wig for the occasion.

BOHEMIA SETS NEW RECORD

Rich Americans Barred as They Fail in Art Test; Many Are Ejected

By International News Service.

Paris, June 9.—The Quartz Arts Ball, the annual frolic of Parisian Bohemia, came to a noisy end at 8 o'clock today after a night of riotous frivolity and abandon such as even the Latin quarter never knew before.

Nude "priestesses" of love and whirling dervishes blended weirdly with jazz. The ball was arranged by art students who are gathered in Paris from all parts of the world. They were accompanied by their models and sweethearts.

There was much confusion, but amidst the smoke and fumes of incense one gay fellow spied that the prevailing costume for the feminine participants was that first worn by Eve.

It was designed as purely an affair for artists. American tourists paid thousands of francs for admission tickets, only to be ejected because they were unable to pass an oral examination at the door on art subjects.

TOURISTS EJECTED.

Some of the tourists who insisted upon entering in the belief that it was only a masquerade were ejected, to the intense delight of hundreds of Parisians who were gathered in the streets outside, nursing the hope that one of the walls of the building would fall out.

The brevity of the girls' costumes indicated the degree to which she had been initiated in the gay life of Bohemia.

One young woman was held up at the door because she wore a regulation evening gown. The verdict of the artists was that she must be an outsider.

"Oh, this is quite simple," exclaimed the young woman as she remedied the defect. She was speedily admitted to the party.

According to the ancient tradition of Quartz Arts Ball, both men and girls put their money in their sandals for safekeeping.

Most of the ateliers had prepared floats. These garish instruments were impressive in color and design. Julian's atelier was represented by a papier mache elephant bearing a beautiful young model who could have posed as a Lady Godiva except for the fact that her hair was bobbed. Ten young women "elephant tamers" accompanied the imitation pachyderm. They were good to look at and were willing to prove it.

MANY FLOATS.

Another float carried thirteen young women entirely nude, who were prostrated before an art student dressed to represent Buddah. Five real Ethiopian models were carried upon another float attired after the fashion of the jungle.

There was another float carrying a big cage in which a gigantic negro chained with a leash pretended to whip three beautiful young white girls.

There was a ballroom scene in which more than 100 models were noted for the beauty and grace of their forms, posed in the nude for prizes.

Miss Baker has just arrived from Paris. She several times postponed her wedding day in the United States.

"WAS OFFERED MONEY"

"Miss Durfee did call at my home at 1:25 Wednesday morning. She was drunk, to put it in plain language. The very air about her smelled of liquor. When my doorbell rang and I answered it she was there on the step and said:

"'For God's sake, give me some liquor.'

"I told her that I could not; that I had none.

"'I must have some,' she said.

"I told her to go to a doctor and get a prescription if some one was ill. Then she left.

"Later she came back and told me she was giving a wild party with three other graduates of the academy and needed the liquor to 'finish up' with. When I refused to talk to her any more she tried to press a bill into my hand, saying:

"'Keep quiet about this.'

"I refused to take the money. I am glad that I did not, for I am convinced that it was a marked bill.

"The stories that there have been wild parties in my home and that the tea shop I ran for a time was closed because of the complaints against it are all absolutely false. I ran the tea room to get money to send my daughter through school. When she finished I discontinued the tea room."

TRUSTEES SCEPTICAL.

Trustees of Bradford Academy today declared they knew nothing of the alleged "parties" until they read of them in the papers. They denied any "goings on" at the staid old academy, "because if there had been any we would undoubtedly have heard of them."

Miss Marion Coates, principal of Bradford Academy, refused to talk to reporters, referring them to Ransom Pingree, counsellor and trustee of the institution.

Mr. Downes, who is organist of St. Stephens' Episcopal Church, Boston, and one of the best known musicians in the eastern part of the State, appeared before the commissioner today, following a raid on his home yesterday by Dry Enforcement Agent James F. Roberts, and the Haverhill police, in which two bottles containing two ounces of whiskey were found hidden under a pile of clothing on the third floor.

Following the report of Miss Durfee, Mr. Roberts obtained a warrant to search the Downes house. He said today that he had questioned a Mr. Grover, a boarder at the home and that the latter had admitted having liquor in his room.

Mr. Roberts, however, had no search warrant for the boarder and as a result did not attempt to enter the latter's apartment.

The liquor was found in two nearly empty bottles, each containing less than an ounce apiece.

According to Mr. Roberts, he has reports of more than a dozen gay parties in which the Bradford Academy students took part, many of them supplied with silver flasks, which they carried in their stockings. These charges are said to be under inquiry by the academic authorities.

Mr. Roberts said that the students paid $3 to have the silver flasks refilled at the Downes home, according to the reports reaching him.

The raiders were met at the door of the Downes house by Mr. Downes himself, who expressed surprise at seeing them. As soon as he learned their errand and saw the search warrant with which they had supplied themselves, he is said to have thrown the house open to their search.

After the search was over and the whiskey found, Mr. Downes was arrested and taken to the Haverhill police headquarters, t

DIVORCE GIVEN TENNESSEE BEAUTY

Mrs. Sally Tiffany Stevens, a Tennessee beauty, spending the Summer in the colony at Gloucester, today was granted a divorce from Herbert Ainsworth Stevens on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment. She also receives the custody of her 10-year-old boy, Hillary, and $60 a month for his support and education.

Mrs. Stevens testified before Chief Justice Hall of Superior Court that she married Stevens at Washington, D. C., December 24, 1907. At that time, she said, he was connected with the United States Department of Commerce and Labor, but is now in the field service of the Veterans Bureau. When she married him, she said, his legal residence was in Cambridge, but since their marriage he has adopted Worcester as his place of abode. He is temporarily living in Philadelphia.

Shortly after her boy was born, she said, her sister was visiting them and attempted to fondle the child. This incurred the displeasure of Stevens, who tried to have Mrs. Burke, then Miss Tiffany, cease her attentions to the child.

When Mrs. Stevens attempted to intervene, she said, he knocked her down. This was the first assault he committed on her, she said.

Following that incident, she testified, he became surly and would not speak for periods of months. He repeated his assaults later, she testified, and then she left him.

Mrs. Burke, the sister, substantiated the wife's testimony.

ACTION ON MAJOR CASE PUT OFF

Washington, June 9.—The Senate military affairs committee at its regular meeting today ignored the Presidential nomination to promote Lieutenant-Colonel Duncan K. Major, former chief of staff of the 26th (New England) Division, who was charged with stirring National Guard troops.

The committee announced it had not considered Major's promotion, although a score of other nominations were approved.

Final action on Major's case, it was said, might be taken at next week's session.

Oh, Di Mi!—The Flapper Discovers Why Jack Pickford Loves Marilyn Miller

By THE FLAPPER

WELL, sister flaps, you knew that Jack Pickford was the frog's gold tooth when it came to snap and dash, but here's a new one—did you know he was camera-shy?

Oh di mi, yes! He'd rather have a gun pointed at him than a camera.

He's all used to acting for the nervous tin-types, but posing before an album-machine throws a terrible scare into him. Poor boy!

I took an ankle excursion over to Copley square yesterday to see how the rollicking romance was setting and here's what happened.

I HAD A CHAIR AND WAITED—

Jack had only just big-heaned from the feathers and was feverishly getting himself overhawled for a noodle sauce party. He couldn't be seen for hours!

I had a chair and waited. It takes a good deal more waiting to interview Jack Pickford than it does to see the Prince of Wales or President Harding or—make your own list—but we won't go into that.

Finally—a long finally—he loped out all arrayed in a solid silk Kuppenheimer, to say nothing of a straw bonnet with a Harvard hat-band on. (Not the kind of a hat they feed to the cows, either.)

"Hello," he said, warmly. "Nice weather."

"Nice if you like it," I said. "But even at 113 degrees it doesn't make as bright reading as your coming marriage to Marilyn Miller. Tell us the truth, son. Have you ordered the wedding cake?"

"Not yet," grinned the flipper of the films. "But," he added, hopefully, "not so far off, either. We may be married in September."

"In that case, will you please hold that romantic expression while I take your picture?" I asked him.

"What do you want to take my picture for?"

"But I don't want my picture taken."

"Why?"

"Why do you love the girl?" I asked Jack next.

"Because," he said, "she's an old-fashioned girl. I don't believe in the things girls do now."

"As what?" I asked.

"Why, smoking and drinking and staying up all hours of the night," he said. "I've even heard that some women go to prise fights. I wouldn't let my wife do that."

(Are you going to let him get away with that, Marilyn?).

But even as he spoke the phone rang and his pretty pet ordered him down-stairs to the car. So down he went.

Marilyn Also Hates Publicity

Marilyn has bobbed hair and wears flappy sandals and a slip-on sweater. And it's easy to see that she thinks Jack is the cat's me-ow. Does that make her a flapper-jack? Let's wonder.

Anyhow, I asked her if she'd hold that pose till I snapped it. She said:

"Oh, no, no, no, no, no. I hate publicity."

So there you have it. Two of a kind. What could be fairer than that?

But I took their picture anyhow. If they hadn't made me so neurosthenic with their no-no-noes it might have been a good picture. As it was, the camera stuttered.

As the bespattered into Marilyn's fifteen-thousand berry, fawn-colored breeze-wagon, I asked a final question.

"Are you gonna have a band at your wedding?"

"Oh, no, no, no," Marilyn called back. "It's going to be awfly simple."

All I got to say is—simple is the word.

THE CAMERA STUTTERED

It's their own fault. Jack Pickford and Marilyn Miller got me so over-wrought with their no, no, no's that the camera stuttered. They're a little abbreviated, but outside of that it's a very good likeness. Don't you think so yourself.

PAPPAS FLED HOTEL BY REAR

marriage to Pappas she had $4,500, left her by her first husband. She loaned Pappas $850 before marrying him, she said, and after marriage changed her bank account to a joint one that Pappas might use it.

From her money $2,500 was invested in an ice cream business of which Pappas was a partner.

She testified Pappas received mail under two assumed names, one of them being "A. Tmas" and that he had mail come to other addresses. She sent one of the Tmas letters, written in Greek, to Sergeant Carey of the Boston olice, she said.

FLED FROM DETECTIVES.

As a result of what Pappas confided to her, she declared, she and he went to her attorney for a conference. What was said at this conference was excluded by the court.

On September 8 a stranger appeared at the ice cream parlor and asked for Pappas. The wife told the stranger that Pappas had gone down town. That morning Pappas had worn a green suit and straw hat. He returned home without his coat, put on another coat, and said: "Quick the detectives are coming," and left by a back door.

In reply to telephone messages, his wife said, she met him. He took a room in Verdun, a suburb of Montreal, where she twice visited him. The last time she saw him was in a cell at Montreal Police Headquarters.

ESCAPED IN PITTSBURGH.

How Pappas escaped arrest in Pittsburgh was described earlier in the sesion today.

It was contained in an alleged statement given by Pappas shortly after his arrest to Captain Alnsico Armstrong, and was read by Police Stenographer A. J. Gill.

There, the statement relates, he was warned by a Greek bellboy of the hotel in which he was staying that the police were hunting him. With the aid of the bellboy, Pappas told Captain Armstrong, he got out of the hotel by means of a rear window.

Swig was charged with two counts in regard to the Magano girl, it being alleged that in her case he literally kidnaped her, forcing her into the automobile which conveyed her to the cemetery.

The warrant charging him with assaulting the Magano girl, who lives with her mother and father at No. 231 Washington street, was sworn out by the child's mother, Mrs. Marie Magano.

Chief of Police James Crowley swore out the warrant in behalf of Miss Julia Crotty, who lives with her uncle, George Alsop at No. 34 Wilbur street, and is a senior at the Taunton High School.

Mrs. Magano and her child created a stir in the crowded courtroom. The girl was so small the crowd gasped when they saw her. She is pale and dark. Her face was hidden by a large hat.

Miss Crotty, rather large for her age, was neatly dressed. She also is a brunette.

The sidewalks around the courthouse were crowded. Police were on duty to protect the girls from the curious.

Swig indignantly denied the truth of the accusations against him declaring that he was an innocent man and that he had been "framed." He is married and lives at No. 41 Orchard street.

Swig is thirty-four years old and is president o" a local tobacco company.

SAYS SLAYER IS SON OF BRITISH NOBLEWOMAN

London, June 9 (By the Associated Press).—The Daily Express, in reporting the reprieve of Ronald True, convicted of the murder of Gertrude Yates, quoted the following from a recent issue of the Sunday Express:

"The murderer (True) is the son of Lady ——. His identity has been carefully concealed, but it has been whispered all over London, and if disclosed it would startle the whole world. Ronald True came into the world when his mother was a girl of seventeen.

"True, who spent some time in the United States during the war as a British aviation instructor, was ordered removed yesterday to the Broadmoor Criminal Insane Hospital by the Home Secretary, following a medical examination by three physicians.

The Home Secretary, Edward Shortt, was severely criticised by several newspapers. The Evening Star terms the respite a scandal in view of the fact that the jury had not recommended mercy, while in the case of Henri Jacobi, the hotel pantry boy who was recently executed for the murder of Lady Alice White, the jury had recommended mercy and 1,600 people had signed a petition for reprieve, which Mr. Shortt had refused to grant.

GIRL, 12, ADMITS KILLING HER FATHER

By International News Service.

Washington, June 9.—Mary Sorisinski, twelve years old, is being held in the Juvenile Court Detention Room here today for further examination and her disposition is a problem to be determined by the court.

The girl, according to her revelations to Chief of Detectives John Weiner, shot and killed her father, Joseph Sorisinski, last night. The Sorisinski family resides at Marianna, a mining town near here.

At first the girl told Chief Weiner the father had committed suicide, but the chief found a bullet hole in the back of Sorisinski's head. A long quiz finally resulted in the girl confessing that she had been subjected to severe beatings several times recently.

At the supper table last night, she girl said, she was refused a piece of meat. Then, according to her story, she calmly went upstairs to her father's bed room, got his .38 calibre revolver, returned to the dining room, and waiking behind him, shot him through the head.

Then she wrapped the gun in a burlap rag and hid it in the woodshed.

A cool wave from the Canadian Northwest is due to reach Boston tonight or tomorrow, and break the grip of the hot spell, which has kept the city gasping for breath for four days, according to the official weather prediction today. It was 90 at 2 p. m.

Mayor Curley today ordered the Park Department to take further measures to aid the discomfort of the public during the heat wave, by placing benches on the Charlestown and Dover street bridges.

He also directed the fire commissioner to flush the streets in the congested districts at intervals during the day and night.

Every bath house in the city is open today, more than a week ahead of the usual opening date.

The cool wave may reach here this evening, the weather man added, and showers with some scattered thunderstorms are expected to bring the temperature down to the vicinity of seventy degrees before evening.

Tomorrow the mercury is not expected to go much above sixty-eight and may go as low as sixty.

All of which does not keep Boston from being the hottest place in the country today, with the exception of Key West, Fla., where at 8 o'clock the mercury had climbed to 82, which was two degrees higher than the official figure for the Hub.

The hottest June in the records of the local weather bureau was in 1898, when the temperature went above 92 for several hours.

The humidity of today was reported lower than yesterday.

FIND HUSBAND OF WOMAN WHO TOOK POISON

Joseph Vickary, husband of pretty Helen Vickary, twenty years old, who attempted suicide by taking poison when her baby became seriously ill and she was left in poverty by the desertion of her husband, has been found in Lisbon, N. H., where he is working as a roofer, according to information received by the Boston American.

A half-sister of Mrs. Vickary, known as Alice Martell, or Alice Curtis, and employed in a Washington street lunch room, is said to have confided to a friend that she would write to Vickary and "tip him off" that the police were looking for him for desertion of his wife.

According to a South End woman who befriended Mrs. Vickary when she was destitute, the bride of a year and a half declared that her husband had pawned her clothing before he deserted her.

Mrs. Vickary, who is passionately devoted to her nine-months-old daughter, became desperate when the child was operated upon last week. "I can't stand it any longer," she is alleged to have said. Shortly afterwards she took poison and was removed to the City Hospital, where her baby was convalescing. She recovered and was sent to the home of a woman in Brockton who learned of her plight. The baby is still at the hospital.

MAX-MATHILDE ROMANCE HITS NEW SNAGS

Chicago, June 9.—All the world loves a lover! Blah!

Loud, raspberry tinted shrieks of negation from Mathilde McCormick, the poor little rich girl. All the oil owned by her celebrated grandfather, John D. (Socony) Rockefeller, cannot smooth the troubled waters which threaten to inundate her romance with Max Oser, distinguished Swiss hostler, who is Mathilde's fiancé—in a manner of speaking.

There are more obstacles to their marriage than there are holes in Max's native Swiss cheese, Verily, it begins to look as if the Swiss hellringers will never have an opportunity to tinkle out the wedding march.

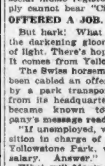
Following the announcement that Mathilde's mamma, former wife of Harold F. McCormick, had taken legal steps to prevent a marriage between the sixteen-year-old American flapper heiress and the forty-eight-year-old Swiss riding master, comes other disquieting news.

From New York is heralded the arrival of Saverio Dati, a 70-year-old Alpine guide, who came in on the steamer Providence with a green feather in his cap and mystery all over.

AIR OF MYSTERY.

On board ship rumors had spread that Saverio was going to Tarrytown to see Mr. Rockefeller with certain information said to be detrimental to the Max-Mathilde nuptials. It was said that Saverio expects to dent the Rockefeller bankroll a wee mite in consideration of the mysterious information.

He refused to yodel on bit of dope, however, to eager reporters, merely saying he was to be the guest of Mrs. Hartley Dodge of New York, a relative of the Rockefellers, and that he might later explain the purpose of his visit.



On top of this comes a pronunciamento from Zurich's 400 to the effect that Mathilde will be given the icy, Alpine upand-down if she becomes Fraulein Oser. It appears that Max's papa was a circus man who used to yell, "Hey, Rube!" in a provincial Swiss tent show.

Swiss society cannot forgive the occupation of Oser's sire. They will admit "Every Stable Blues" to their social music register, but they simply cannot hear "Circus Days."

OFFERED A JOB.

But hark! What is that? Out of the darkening gloom comes a flash of light. There's hope for the lovers. It comes from Yellowstone Park.

The Swiss horseman of Zurich has been cabled an offer of employment by a park transportation company from its headquarters in Helena, it became known today. The company's message read:

"If unemployed, will offer you position in charge of saddle horses in Yellowstone Park, with satisfactory salary. Answer."

What will Max's answer be? Will it be, "A Horse! A Horse! My kingdom for a horse!"?

BRIDGES WILL COST CITY $250,000 LESS

A saving of more than $250,000 has been made by the city by the opening of bids for the construction of the Beacon street and the Chelsea street bridges, over the estimates of the city engineers, as the cost of materials and labor have fallen off that much. Mayor Curley is planning to use $100,000 in smoother pavements in the North and West End streets, to aid in flushing them in warm weather.

NOVIANA' IN MYSTERY DUNES

(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)
(Copyright, 1922, by Evening American Publishing Company.)

Chicago, June 9.—The finding of the body of an unidentified man charred beyond recognition in the sand dunes eight miles east of Chesterton, Ind., today, has provided the authorities of Porter County, Indiana, with a grim mystery.

"Diana, of the Dunes," a woman who has lived in half barbaric style on the dunes for the past eight years, and a man known as "Wilson," said to have posed as the husband of Diana, were linked with the mystery when the police started a search for them. Neither has been seen for several days.

The body of the man, a rifle clutched in his hand, was found late yesterday. From all appearances the man was a well-to-do camper. In a satchel near the body was a radio set and a camping outfit. On the suitcase was the name "Anderson" and on two purchase tickets from a Chicago store appeared the name "Erickson."

These are the only clews to the man's identity. From the date on the purchase tickets and a copy of a newspaper which was found beneath the body, the man is believed to have left Chicago May 29.

The man known as "Wilson," whom the authorities are seeking, is said to have come to the dunes comparatively recently and to have taken up his habitation in the hut occupied by "Diana." He and "Diana" became familiar characters about the dunes and the beach that skirts them.

WARD WITNESS TRAILED TO SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., June 9.—Four Westchester County deputy sheriffs were searching here today for Charles J. Rogers, missing witness, sought in the hope he may shed light on the slaying of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., by Walter S. Ward.

The deputies said they were hot on the trail of Rogers, as he checked out of the Onondaga Hotel shortly before their arrival last night.

William Jackson, another mentioned in the alleged confession of James J. Cunningham, now detained at White Plains, is reported to have come to Syracuse with Rogers, but no trace of him has been found.

Seek French Maid Employed by Ward

White Plains, June 9.—The latest character to be added to the cast of the Ward drama is a French maid, reported to have left the employ of the Walter S. Wards a day or two after the shooting of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., occurred.

A report was current she had been located on Long Island and would be called before the Grand Jury.

CUT IN WAGES FOR 1,400 TEAMSTERS

A wage cut of $1 a week was today accepted by 1,400 teamsters, wharfmen, and chauffeurs, after a conference between the Coal Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union with the coal dealers of Boston, and the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration. The new wage schedule will take effect July 1, and will be in force a year.

The dealers proposed a cut of $2, which the workers refused to accept. The State Board affected the compromise.

The new scale is as follows: Teamsters, one-horse, $25; two-horse, $26.50; three-horse, $27.50; wharfmen, $25 and chauffeurs, $30.

MURDER CHARGE IN CARDINAL CASE DROPPED

Plymouth, June 9. — Herbert Alheit, also known as Richard Howland of New York, and James W. Wickham of Marshfield, charged with killing Edward C. Cardinal at Kingston Inn last December, have agreed to plead guilty to manslaughter, and the murder charge will be dropped.

Cardinal, also known as Gardner, was killed as the result of a clash over two cases of whiskey.

Cardinal and the men accused of slaying him were all concerned in rum running, it is claimed.

PROPOSE COMPROMISE IN RHODE ISLAND STRIKE

Pawtucket, R. I., June 9.—Another attempt was made today to settle the textile strike so far as it affects the villages of Ashton, Berkeley and Lonsdale. A communication, signed by Rev. Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Rev. A. M. Hilliker, former Governor Lucius F. C. Garvin and Judge Frank E. Fitzsimmons, has been sent to the Goddard brothers, who control the mills in these villages, and to the local branch of the United Textile Workers of America, suggesting that a settlement of the trouble on the basis of a forty-eight hour working week and a wage reduction of 10 per cent, be considered.

DICTATORSHIP OF RADIO URGED FOR HOOVER

Washington, June 9.—A bill which will make Secretary of Commerce Hoover the almost absolute arbiter of radio control in the United States was introduced in the House today by Congressmen White of Maine. It will be introduced in the Senate by Senator Kellogg.

White drafted the bill. Both he and Kellogg were members of Hoover's radio conference, called to lay the foundation for an amendment to the radio act of 1912. The amendment is an administration measure and as such will have the support of President Harding.

Certain phases of it are expected to arouse opposition from the Democratic side in Congress. But as a whole it is practically certain to be passed, because of the immediate necessity for greater regulation of radio communication commensurate with its recent rapid growth.

The radio conference, out of whose deliberations the amendment grew, was mainly of a technical character, the only political representatives on it being White and Kellogg, both Republicans. Hoover, a Republican, will have the final voice except the President's in determining the kind of speeches, political or otherwise, to be broadcasted. He is empowered to revoke any licenses for causes to be determined later.

There is to be an advisory committee of twelve, and in event of a disagreement, an appeal may be made to President Harding.

Under the amended law Secretary Hoover would have power to break up "The Big Four" or any other manufacturers' combination. The bill will take cognizance of charges that certain makers of apparatus, through the ownership of essential patents, were unduly restricting the manufacture and sale of desirable apparatus, principally vacuum tubes.

SUBSIDIZATION DENIAL BY FEDERAL RESERVE

Washington, June 9.—Emphatic denial that the Federal Reserve Board has ever attempted to subsidize the press or otherwise to secure the publication of articles favorable to its financial policies, as charged with repeatedly in the Senate by Senator Heflin of Alabama, was made today by Governor W. P. G. Harding in a communication addressed to the Senate.

HELD FOR THEFT OF CAR FROM SWEETHEART

Nashua, N. H., June 9.—Charged with the theft of an automobile from his sweetheart, Miss Bertha E. Morgan, of this city, John W. Bates, known in Manchester, his home city, as Bernard Gagnon, was today held in $500.

Miss Morgan gave a note in part payment for a car she bought in Nashua. The note fell due five weeks ago and she was unable to meet it. She testified she gave the car to Bates or Gagnon to return to the company, but that he took it to Manchester.

SCHOOL CADETS IN ANNUAL MARCH

Nine regiments of khaki-clad school cadets marched through downtown Boston today. The parade formed near the English High School and passed in review before Mayor Curley at City Hall and Governor Cox at the State House. A marching salute was given each official.

The Boston School Cadets comprise English High School, High School of Commerce, Trade School, Charlestown High, East Boston High, Brighton High and Dorchester. Major Charles A. Ranlett, instructor of military training in the Boston high school, and Nathaniel J. Young, director of physical training, were in charge.

Mayor Curley speaking to the officers of the school regiments at the City Club after the parade suggested having the parade on the 17th of June annually in connection with Charlestown celebration. He also suggested a $1,000 prize for the best drilled regiment.

The prize would be in the form of band instruments, colors, or swords. The thought came to Mayor Curley as he was reviewing the parade today. He explained that the merchants for some time have been seriously hampred in doing business by parades.

The schoolboys number about 7000 and the streets are so narrow and the parade so long thajit takes several hours afterwards to clear the streets.

Of late years it has been difficult to arouse any interest in the celebration of the Battle of Bunker Hill but with the addition of the schoolboys in the parade, it would help a great deal.

DRAFT EXEMPTIONS BAR ALIENS AS CITIZENS

Manchester, N. H., June 9.—Thirteen applicants for their second naturalization papers were turned down by Judge Oliver W. Branch in the Hillsborough county superior court, because at the time they filled out questionnaries for draft, during the war, they claimed exemption from military service on grounds that they were aliens.

FITCH LACKED FAITH IN SON, SAYS SISTER

Mary A. Fitch of Lexington took the stand today in the suit of her brother, Arthur Fitch, to break the $500,000 will of their father, Benjamin Fitch. The hearing is before Judge Flynn in Superior Court at Cambridge.

Miss Fitch told of the affection for her by her father, who cut Arthur, the son, off with the income on $5,000 and left the bulk of the estate to her and her stepmother, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Fitch.

She also testified her stepmother got along well with her father, and that her father had repeatedly criticised Arthur for a lack of stability and expressed concern over his future.

The son charges his sister and stepmother exercised undue influences over his father.

NOV HALL EYES GET SE IN PAY

y was thrown about the today when Mayor Curley ed that he had awarded in- in salaries to twenty-two em- s of the transit department.

The largest boost won to Walter W. Davis, who was promoted from assistant engineer at $3,500 to assistant chief engineer at $4,000.

Regardless of the threat made some time ago by Mayor Curley that many removals would take place, and that feeling still permeates the air in certain quarters at City Hall, this makes the second large number to receive increases. Those benefiting by today's order are:

INVESTIGATE NEW JUMP IN COST OF GASOLINE

The sudden boost of the price of gasoline will be investigated by the Department of Justice. An early conclusion of the investigating agents hints that the advance in price was not an economic necessity.

Curley Orders Park Grass Plots Be Open to Public

All parks and vacant spaces are to be thrown open during the hot spell; men, women and children can rest on the grass. This is the order to the police from Mayor Curley. At the same time Acting Fire Commissioner William J. Casey has issued orders continuing street showers on all days when the temperature reaches eighty degrees or more.

ENOUGH VOTES IN SENATE TO PASS BONUS

Washington, June 9.—The Soldiers' Bonus Bill was on the Senate's calendar today but without any definite time fixed for its consideration. Chairman McCumber of the Finance Committee reported the measure by unanimous consent after a first effort to present it under a consent agreement had failed.

Senator McCumber desires to have the Senate consider the bill in the near future, but some leaders on the Republican side oppose his plans, believing it unwise to displace the Tariff Bill for a measure which is certain to lead a long and perhaps bitter fight.

That there are sufficient votes in the Senate to pass a bonus bill is conceded by opponents, but whether the measure can be put through in its present form is problematical. The Democrats plan to offer an amendment embodying a cash feature, while Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, now has a bill in providing for a cash bonus.

MATRON HACKED TO DEATH BY FIEND

By Associated Press.

Jackson, Mich., June 9.—The body of Miss Alice Mallott, 40 years old, assistant matron of the Crittenden Home for Girls here, was found with the head crushed and throat slashed today.

An axe and razor had been used by her assailant and indications were that a long struggle took place. No clew to the slayer has been uncovered, but bloodhounds are being used in the pursuit.

The body was found a short distance from the home. The cloth- ing had been torn from the body, the woman having been gagged with a handkerchief.

Poison Gas Used By Burglars in Berlin

By International News Service.

Berlin, June 9.—The use of poison gas by burglars was revealed by the Berlin police today.

Three burglars, one of them a young woman, made a regular wartime "gas attack" upon their victims before robbing them. They pierced the door to the bedroom of a hotel owner. A small rubber tube was inserted through the hole and a quantity of ether gas was released. The hotel owner and his wife were soon unconscious. The three burglars then donned gas masks and entered the room which they plundered.

OPEN NIGHTS

UNTIL 9 O'CLOCK. COME!

The retail Piano and Player business has been very dull for the last few months, but we kept on buying, hoping for a turn of the tide, until our large store is crowded to the point where we must resort to extreme measures to reduce this enormous stock, and to add to our predicament we have several carloads of instruments en route from factories we represent. So, after a meeting of the heads of this great house, it was decided to cut prices and terms so low that the public just cannot help buying. Appreciating present conditions and knowing that something radical must be offered in the way of terms as well as prices, we have, therefore, arranged so that any one can now own a Piano or Player—only $10 down and the balance on almost any weekly or monthly payments you desire, within reason—and we are open every night until 9 o'clock for your convenience. We have included in this great sale every used, slightly used and shopworn Piano and Player.

Call at our store, day or night, and our salesmen will take great pleasure demonstrating the instruments to you, whether you buy or not. This is the opportunity you have been waiting for. Don't put off buying, the prices and terms are all in your favor.

SNIPERS' SHOTS RAKE STREETS OF BELFAST

Belfast, June 9 (By the Associated Press)—It was learned today the Republican forces upon evacuating Pettigo took with them W. A. Murphy, formerly a captain in the Enniskillen Fusiliers and now head constable of the Ulster B specials; also Thomas Emery, George Hall and Robert Irvine, constables. None of the captives has been heard from.

Belfast, June 9 (By International News Service).—British troops today are in possession of all the strongholds of the Republicans along the Ulster frontier and it is believed there will be no further fighting.

The Republicans have crossed over the line into the Free State and the British did not follow them up.

The British military authorities in Belfast have given assurances that the British forces will be recalled as soon as peace is assured.

While the Ulster border was calm, Belfast passed through a wild night. Snipers were active in many quarters of the city and some streets were constantly swept with bullets.

Soldiers in armored cars were sent out to clean up the snipers, and a number of arrests were made.

Protest Attack on Belfast Hospital

London, June 9 (By the Associated Press).—The incident in Belfast Monday night when the Mater Hospital was fired upon continues to agitate the Ulster capital, according to press dispatches.

The hospital authorities telegraphed the International Red Cross headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, protesting against the occurrence, demanding the immediate protection of British troops and also asking the Red Cross to "come to the help of our sick and wounded."

The Geneva office replied that it was ready to take all necessary steps, and asked to whom the Red Cross communication should be addressed, to which the hospital authorities replied, the British Government.

It was not suggested that anybody within the hospital had been struck during the fusillade, the word "wounded" used in the message to Geneva referring to sufferers from previous street fights being cared for in the hospital.

Will DeValera Give Pledge to Britain?

London, June 9 (By International News Service).—Premier Lloyd George presided today at a meeting of the signatories of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty, when it was understood the question was discussed whether it was likely that Eamon DeValera, leader of the Irish Republicans, would take the oath to support the British Empire.

Earlier in the day Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, conferred with Colonial Secretary Churchill and Lord Birkenhead on legal aspects of the treaty amendments.

Cardinal Logue, Held Up, Says Gunman Was an Amateur

Dublin, June 9. (By the Associated Press).—Writing to the press about his second experience at being held up by Ulster constables, Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, says he objected very strongly to having the letters and documents in his grip scrutinized. Describing Wednesday's affair he writes:

"The order was given to 'cover that man with a rifle,' and immediately a rifle was thrust under my nose. I was also covered with a revolver.

"Believing that the young country lad who had the revolver was unaccustomed to firearms and that anything which stirred him might cause the revolver to go off, I asked him repeatedly to keep its point turned up. But he gave no heed, and so I sat under rifle and revolver while the search proceeded."

90 BOTTLES OF REAL BEER IN ONE AUTO

Reading, June 9.—Ninety bottles of real beer, product of a well-known Providence brewery, were found by the Reading Police in the car of Henry Saint Jacques, twenty-four, said by the police to be a Harvard student, when he was arrested today for trying to drive his car along the sidewalk in the square.

Saint Jacques was charged with drunkenness and operating a car under the influence of liquor. He gave his address as No. 10 Museum road, Boston.

Chief James Cullinane took the beer for safe keeping. Saint Jacques was arraigned, and his case continued until tomorrow.

POPE'S DIET IS FIXED BY HIS OWN DOCTOR

Dr. Amici.

Dr. Amici, personal physician to Pope Pius XI, has prescribed a rigid diet for his patient, and has personally instructed chefs at the Vatican as to the manner in which His Holiness' food must be prepared. The physician fears that the close confinement suffered by the Pope in the walls of the Vatican is undermining his health.

GLOOM CHASES JOY AS FINES ARE IMPOSED

Gustav Bommen of Lincoln was arraigned today before Judge Weston in Newton Court with the following charges against him.

Driving an automobile while drunk.

Refusing to stop when ordered to do so by the police.

Intoxication.

Sergeants William Mahoney and William Whelan saw Bommen zigzagging along on Commonwealth avenue in an automobile early this morning. When his car ran into and knocked down a traffic sign near College Road, which urged careful driving, they ordered him to stop. He refused. The officers commandeered a passing car and pursued.

In court later Bommen jovially admitted that he was guilty on all three charges. Judge Weston therupon fined him $100, and gave him thirty days on the first charge, fined him $25 on the second charge, and $15 on the third charge. Bommen's good nature disappeared when he heard the fines and sentence. He appealed for leniency, which was denied.

TWO SUE FOR BALM TO HEAL HEARTS

Miss Margaret McLean of Revere has brought suit for $20,000, against James W. Barrett of Revere for breach of promise.

Miss McLean says that Barrett proposed in June, 1919, and again in July, 1921. On each occasion she agreed to become his wife, but she says he refuses to carry out his agreement.

Attachments have been made on three parcels of land on Woodland road, Oak Island Grove, Revere, standing in the name of Sarah A. Campbell of No. 261 Clarendon street, Boston, but the plaintiff believes Barrett has a beneficial interest in the land.

Alice D. Nelson of Boston has brought suit for $10,000, against James A. Fray, also of Boston, who failed to keep his promise to marry her, according to her declaration.

Kellogg's Bran means so much to the health of every one who eats it!

Start eating Bran today! You can't afford the delay of a day—for BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is nature's own remedy for constipation. Eliminate constipation or its symptoms from your system and you add years to your life. Free yourself of illness that can be directly traced to this distressing condition!

Authorities state that 90 per cent. of human illness has its beginning with constipation, which clogs the eliminative passages, backing up poisons and breeding toxic conditions. At this stage the blood becomes affected and then follows the disorder of various organs. Bright's disease, diabetes, most cases of rheumatism, hardening of arteries, headaches, brain fag, etc., are directly caused by intestinal poisoning.

Pills and cathartics can give no adequate relief. They are not only temporary in their effect, but tend to aggravate already dangerous conditions. Kellogg's Bran causes neither discomfort nor irritation, and its action is absolutely positive. Bran sweeps and cleanses and purifies! Its work is wonderful!

Physicians indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it relieves constipation, naturally. Eat Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases with each meal—as a cereal, sprinkled on other cereals, or in many other appetizing ways such as in raisin bread, gems, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every box. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Start with Kellogg's Bran today.

P. S.—Kellogg's Bran, eaten regularly, will clear up a pimply complexion and overcome an obnoxious breath.

Bishops Must 'Envy Calves' of Envoy Harvey

(By International News Service.)

London, June 9.—"How the Bishops must envy Mr. Harvey's calves," said The Daily Express today in commenting upon the American ambassador's appearance at court in knickerbockers.

TRACK VICTIM MAY BE FOILED HOLDUP MAN

Wauregan, Ct., June 9.—An attempted highway robbery was balked by the bravery and quick thinking of Albert Day of Pomfret, driver of a taxicab, who was attacked by a man who had engaged him to drive to Central Village.

A mile from this town the fare drew a revolver and demanded the car. At the same time he struck the driver over the head with a blackjack, but without sufficient force to stun Day.

The chauffeur seized the blackjack and the hand holding the revolver and then struck his assailant across the face. Just at that point the car, left to itself, dashed against a stone wall, throwing both men to the road.

Day and the robber fought in the dirt until the latter, seeing Day was too strong for him, fled in the direction of Putnam.

A few hours later the mangled body of a man was found beside the railroad north of here, not far from where seven old ties had been wired across the rails.

The police are inclined to believe that the mangled body is that of the would-be holdup man.

DISBAR LAWYER FOR ALLEGED BRIBE PLOT

Rochester, N. H., June 9.—Attorney Francis J. MacDonald of Dover was disbarred from practicing in New Hampshire courts, following a decision of the Supreme Court.

Attorney MacDonald, a members of the Strafford County Bar Association, and a former service man, was disbarred for an alleged plan to bribe members of the Dover Board of Aldermen in 1921, in connection with a petition of John Sullivan to erect a blacksmith shop, which was opposed by residents.

The case was based on an affidavit by Sullivan that McDonald, who was acting as his attorney, had told him that a certain sum of money would have to be distributed among the aldermen to obtain the permit and that he gave the money, said to be $600, to McDonald.

RUNAWAY GIRL CAUGHT TRYING TO LEAP FENCE

Lawrence, June 9.—An anonymous telephone call brought a squad of police to a house at No. 245 Oak street, just in time to prevent the escape of fourteen-year-old Mary Yelim of Haverhill, who ran away from her home last Saturday and who had been sought by officers of the two cities since that time.

The girl was caught by the police as she was trying to climb over a fence behind the house. She was taken to police headquarters, where she admitted having left home in company with Joseph Trano, twenty-eight years old, of Lawrence.

After an interview the police sent the girl home and announced they would take no action against the man. He is said to have fled from the Oak street house just before the officers arrived.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Rice-Lyman Wedding Attracts Brilliant Gathering

By BETTY ALDEN.

WHISPERS, and quite audible ones at that, of "Stunning!" were to be heard from all sides when Miss Elizabeth Lyman walked down the aisle of Emmanuel Church on Wednesday afternoon.

And the descriptive exclamation was entirely correct, for a more lovely bride than the daughter of the Charles F. Lymans could not be found in many months of June. A slim young woman, with light brown hair and gray eyes, she made a most attractive picture in her wedding gown of satin, richly trimmed with rare old family lace, and a long, flowing veil of tulle, caught with a slender wreath of lilies of the valley. The bridal bouquet was of the same flower.

Her daddy must have felt proud indeed, as the bride marched down to the altar upon his arm, but certainly he felt not one whit prouder than young "Tom" Rice, with whom the bride made her trip back from the altar. The wedding of the young people was one of the most important of the month. The groom, whose parents are the Charles G. Rices of Ipswich, is one of the crack players of the Myopia Hunt, and the Rices have a host of distinguished connections along the North Shore. His clubs include the Tennis and Racquet and the Union Boat. The bride, one of the popular members of the 1913 Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club, has an equally large circle of friends.

I HAVE hardly ever seen a more attractive bridal group than the one chosen by the former Elizabeth Lyman to attend her at Wednesday's ceremony.

Both the maid of honor, Miss Nancy Carnegie, and the four bridesmaids, the Misses Isabel Porter, Catherine Adams, Mary Weld and Elizabeth Atkinson, were gowned alike in softly clinging dresses of white chiffon, with girdles of pale pink tulle. Their hats were white, with "droopy" brims, and were trimmed with pale pink roses.

Apropos of the maid of honor, Miss Carnegie is spending the Summer with her mother, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, and her sister, Miss Lucy Carnegie, at their Summer place, known as "Seawold," in Manchester Cove. Last year Mrs. Carnegie and her daughters, whose Winter home is in Georgia, spent the hot months at Racquet Lakes, N. Y., returning to Manchester in the Fall.

AMONG the many young folk attending the Lyman-Rice nuptials were the Misses Louise and Rose Fessenden. The former was simply dressed in blue and white dotted silk, while her sister, Rose, whose engagement to Edward L. Bigelow was recently announced, wore a dress of periwinkle crepe de chine with insertions of cream color lace. A periwinkle hat completed the costume.

Speaking of Rose Fessenden, who is the youngest daughter of the Sewall H. Fessendens, evidently she is extremely popular with the youngsters out Chestnut Hill way, where the Fessendens have an intermediate home. For at the smart Chestnut Hill horse show, held on Memorial Day, all the little folk who were crowding the rail in my vicinity became quite excited when Miss Fessenden entered the ring mounted on her high-spirited steed. Immediately there arose cries of "Here comes Rosie, let's give her a hand!" from the lusty throats of the very "younger" set attending the show.

The Fessendens have a large estate along the North Shore on Coolidge's Point, Manchester, where they spend the Summer. Their oldest daughter, Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr. (Caroline Fessenden), who makes her home with them, is one of the most charming of the younger matrons. She is tall and slim, with soft brown hair and brown eyes, and she is constantly in demand along the Shore during the Summer time to lend a helping hand at the many charity sales given there.

ONE of the oldest places along the shore is the Wenham Tea House, built way back in 1671, where a host of fashionables congregate daily for a "cup o' tea." Especially popular is the tea house when there is anything going on at the Myopia Hunt Club.

The place has been entirely done over, but despite the renovation, it has kept its Colonial look.

Searched River for Boy; Found Him in the Jam

Whitinsville, June 9.—Hey, Sherlock!

Charlie Nighostanof disappeared. The boy's frantic mother, returning from the store with a supply of jam, missed him. She notified the neighbors. For hours Whitin Machine Works pond was dragged by men in boats with grappling hooks.

Mrs. Nighostanof, wringing her hands, prepared to mourn her son as drowned. Instead, she was forced to spank him. On her tearful return home she found him—in the pantry. The jam was nearly gone.

COLBY, FREED AS SLAYER, NOW MUST WORK

Concord, N. H., June 9.—Four days after Charles W. Colby, Jr., of Lawrence, who fatally shot Oliver Blanchette in Henniker, May 5, fling in self defense, was reconciled with his wife, from whom he had been separated prior to the shooting, the couple parted again, the wife refusing to stand for Colby's "going on" with other girls.

This became known today when it leaked out that young Colby was before Judge Brown in Municipal Court charged with being an idle and disorderly person, because, after he had been freed on the shooting charge, he shunned work and went around with Henniker and Weare Hopkinton girls.

Colby's case was continued to July 1 to see if he will forgo the girls and get a job.

FIGHTS POLICE TO KEEP WIFE IN THE U. S.

Providence, R. I., June 9—The climax of a nine-months' struggle by Antonio Andrioli, of No. 42 Arthur street, to keep his wife and two small children from deportation as undesirable aliens, came in the Union Station when the despairing husband and father fought desperately with the immigration inspector and police to prevent his wife from being taken to Boston.

Mrs. Andrioli came to this country during the worst part of the German submarine campaign five years ago. Immigration officials permitted her to land, although they found her mentally deficient, rather than expose her to the danger of a return trip through the submarine zone.

Then she married Mr. Andrioli, fifteen years a Providence resident and an American citizen.

Two children were born to them, but despite this the Washington immigration authorities nine months ago took steps to have Mrs. Andrioli deported. Her husband engaged an attorney and the matter was fought out. Andrioli believed it settled until the final deportation order yesterday.

That order signed by the Acting Secretary of Labor reached Immigration Inspector W. M. Clark. At the Arthur street home of the Andriolis he ran into difficulty. The man refused to surrender the woman.

Police were called and after much argument Andrioli agreed to allow his wife to be taken to Boston. He accompanied her to the Union station. Inspector Clark had authority to pay for Mrs. Andrioli's fare to Boston, only. Her husband and babies, if they went, would have to pay their own.

Andrioli protested. Mr. Clark was firm. Andrioli lost his temper and as the inspector and Mrs. Andrioli neared the gates for the train the husband turned on the inspector and attacked him, battering him about the face and clawing at his cheeks.

Mrs. Andrioli went to her husband's assistance. Finally it was decided to take the woman and the babies to Central Police Station and hold them until the arrival of immigration inspectors from Boston today.

RETIREMENT ALLOWANCE BILL SIGNED BY COX

The bill providing retirement allowances, based on annuity and pension contributions, for all employes of Boston and Suffolk County, became a law when it was signed by Governor Cox. Employes who are now working under existing pension systems will not come under the provisions of the new law, it is announced, which requires a contribution of 4 per cent. of the employe's salary.

MAY SEIZE COAL MINES TO END STRIKE

By International News Service.

Washington, June 9.—A threat to invoke governmental intervention as a means of ending the coal tie-up was climaxed today by revelation that a movement is under way in the Senate to enact a joint resolution authorizing the President to seize all mines in strike areas.

The proposed action is said to be gaining support from both Democrats and Republicans, who declared it would favor this unprecedented remedy if pacific methods failed.

The movement was launched by former Progressives, who recalled the sudden termination of the great bituminous strike of 1903 when President Roosevelt summarily threatened to seize all mines.

Introduction of the proposed resolution, it was learned authoritatively, has already been the subject of one conference of former Progressives.

Senator Norris of Nebraska declared today he was among the Senators who had attended this conference. He said he was now considering the advisability of introducing a resolution to carry the roposed seizure into effect.

"A question of life and death is raised by this coal strike," he said. "The American public will freeze next Winter unless something is done very soon to end the strike.

"Besides this tremendous danger to human life, the strike is slowly paralyzing business and eventually will cripple our transportation systems. If no other remedy is offered to end this strike within a reasonable time, I will try to get a resolution passed to authorize the President to seize the mines through the Senate."

PATROLMAN COMMENDED FOR WINNING GUN FIGHT

Patrolman Joseph A. Cote of the Lagrange Street Station has been commended in general orders for capturing a man on Corning street in a running gunfire on Sunday morning.

Early in the morning of June 3, while patrolling his beat, Patrolman Cote heard revolver shots and running into Corning street from Shawmut avenue saw one man staggering as if hurt, and another man running down Corning street, who refused to stop. He fired and the man returned the fire. He stopped when shot in his left leg. He was arrested.

BAD CHECK PASSER GIVEN 15 MONTHS

Found guilty in five counts of larceny through worthless checks, George E. Custance of Brainard road, Allston, was sentenced to fifteen months in the House of Correction by Judge Burke in Municipal Court. He appealed and was held in $1,500.

BELIEVE BROTHERHOODS MAY OPPOSE RAIL STRIKE

Cincinnati, June 9—While union heads generally refrained from commenting on the probability of a walkout as the result of the release of strike ballots to 400,000 railway shopmen, some leaders expressed the belief that, although there were grounds for a strike in the railroad industry, it would not be sanctioned unless al of the sixteen brotherhoods and organizations presented a united front. Doubt was expressed that the four transportation brotherhoods would join in such a movement.

LARGE HATS DECREED TO REPLACE "FLAPPERS"

New York, June 9—Bad news for the bobbed hair girls is brought from Paris by returning millinery buyers, who say the small hats so fetching with "bobs" will be supplanted next Fall by large hats considered necessary by Parisian dictators to conform with the long, straight lines of next Fall's dresses.

MAPPING OUT SYSTEM OF AERIAL HIGHWAYS

Washington, June 9—The airways section of the army air service, under the general direction of Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the service, has begun work on a system of aerial highways which will traverse all parts of the United States. It is anticipating the day, which it believes near, when the continent will be crossed in two days' flying instead of five days by rail. The highways are to be regularly patroled and the landing fields inspected.

BATTLE BLAZE ABOARD STEAMSHIP WAKANNA

Fire of undetermined origin was discovered in the hold of the U. S. Shipping Board vessel Wakanna at Metropolitan Wharf, South Boston. Fireboats and local apparatus were rushed to the wharf and found a stubborn blaze in progress. The ship was being dismantled and no crew was aboard.

Flames leaped skyward from the burning craft causing a red glow that attracted hundreds of spectators. Firemen battled for hours before the blaze was under control.

"PEEPER" SPIES ON GIRLS DISROBING

Fall River, June 9—Following a complaint registered by Pierre Martel of Blackstone street, the police are seeking a "Peeping Tom," who was seen near the Martel house. Two girls were preparing to retire when they noticed a man peeping through the window. They screamed and he fled.

BIG RINGLING CIRCUS DUE HERE SUNDAY

When, as mere boys, the Ringling brothers began their first wagon-show venture in Wisconsin thirty-seven years ago, there were five "proprietors and sole owners."

This was still true when, twenty years ago, they invaded Boston for the first time, pitched their tents in the Back Bay district and surprised Bostonians by giving them a circus with a "grand stand" carpeted aisles and lighted with electricity.

FIVE BIG TRAINS.

In those days the portraits of Otto, Charles, Alf. T., John and Al Ringling were a familiar sight on the billboards when circus-time drew near.

Next Sunday the Ringling Brothers' circus combined with the Barnum & Bailey show will arrive in Boston. But instead of coming on wagons it will arrive on one hundred steel, double length railroad cars, divided into five trains traveling one hour apart.

With it will come Charles and John Ringling, the two remaining brothers and who, though almost 70 years of age, is as active in the management of their circus as they were in the days when it made its headquarters in Baraboo, Wis.

A great stand will be used when the show exhibits here next week, but instead of being built it will be erected from the equipment carried on tour and which itself requires the use of twenty two wagons.

CARRY OWN DYNAMOS.

There will be electric lighted tents and cages, but instead of stringing wires from the city's poles, the current will come from a battery of four powerful dynamos, built in vans, that are also carried on tour.

It is the biggest circus ever organized. Its main tent will seat 15,000 persons. Its personnel numbers 1,600 performers and workers, 750 horses, 1,000 animals of the menagerie, 150 trained animals and two-thirds of all the elephants in America.

JEAN ACKER IS GLAD VALENTINO WAS FREED

Jean Acker.

Chicago, June 9.—"I still love him and you cannot turn against people you care for," exclaimed Jean Acker, ex wife of Rudolph Valentino, male vampire of the screen. Miss Acker stopped at Chicago while on her way to New York to wire a message of congratulation to her former husband on his acquittal of the bigamy charge that followed his marriage to Winifred Hudnut. Valentino had been separated from Miss Acker but three months when he remarried.

KILL BUS LINE FROM MALDEN TO WAKEFIELD

Establishment of a jitney bus service between Wakefield and Malden, which would have cut in half the street car fare between those two towns, was prevented when the Wakefield Board of Selectmen unanimously voted down an offer made by Joseph Hart of Malden, who sought permission to operate the line.

Hart declared he could run busses with fifteen minute service between the towns at a cost of ten cents per passenger. His plans aroused the enmity of Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway officials, however, and they threatened to discontinue service if he was allowed to establish his line.

TWO HURT IN AUTO COLLISION IN QUINCY

Two men were injured when a taxi cab, driven by Joseph Fostello, Newcomb street, Quincy, was smashed by an automobile operated by Arthur M. Thayer, No. 14 Standish street, North Weymouth, at Washington and Raymond streets, Quincy. Thayer was arrested charged with reckless driving. Those hurt are William Hall, North street, Quincy, and Hyman Silverman, Washington street, Quincy. They were treated at the Quincy hospital for cuts and bruises.

Lillian Lorraine Is Named as Divorce Co-Respondent

LILLIAN LORRAINE.

FINDS HUSBAND WITH ACTRESS IN RAID

New York, June 9 Lillian Lorraine, who recently starred in the musical comedy "The Blue Kitten," has been named co-respondent in a suit for absolute divorce filed by Mrs Gladys Wagner against Charles C Wagner, known along Broadway as Billy Lloyd, the cabaret king.

An early morning raid revealed, according to sworn affidavits of five private detectives, Miss Lorraine and Wagner in the boudoir of her apartment at No 120 West Seventy first street.

FOUND DURING RAID.

"Seven months ago, after a hilarious party given by Lillian Lorraine at the club Maurice Wagner disappeared," said an eye witness

"It was learned he was living in an apartment on the first floor of No 120 West Seventy first street. At 3 o'clock in the morning of May 27 we raided the place

"Wagner aroused the house with cries of 'Murder! Help! Police' One of the raiders stuffed a stocking he found under the bed in Wagner's mouth and muzzled him

WORRIED ABOUT HOOCH.

"Miss Lorraine, thinking the intruders were revenue officers, shouted:

"'Charlie, you have my hooch Don't let them take my hooch'"

But Charlie ugly mouthed a plea through his stocking-stuffed mouth not to shoot

Attorneys for Mrs Wagner are preparing papers in a preliminary motion for allmony, said to be $250 a week

NEW R. R. WAGE CUT WILL HIT 350,000

Chicago, June 9.—Railway telegraphers probably will not be included in the third wage reduction order of the Railroad Labor Board.

The telegraphers number approximately 81,000. So many local conditions on various lines have to be considered that deliberation on an order affecting the telegraphers would necessarily consume weeks, it is said.

New wage cuts to follow the $110,000,000 already lopped off the pay checks of 500,000 maintenance of way employes and 400,000 shopmen, will affect 350,000 railroad clerks, signal men, stationary firemen, oilers and marine department employes, according to reports.

Chief among the groups are 220,000 men in the signal departments and 150,000 freight handlers and truckers.

Railroad officials continued to doubt the probability of a strike even if the referendum which started Tuesday should favor a strike, some rail officials doubted whether union leaders would urge an actual walkout next month.

To Award Veteran Diploma Civil War Cost Him

North Adams, June 9.—John Quincy Ervin, who ran away from Drury Academy here in 1862 to enlist in the Union army, will be a guest of honor at the Academy commencement exercises this Spring and will receive the diploma which the Civil War prevented him from getting fifty-six years ago.

Mr. Ervin joined the army when he had but a few weeks yet remaining of his school career. He served throughout the rest of the war, taking part in many important engagements, being wounded and finally taken prisoner.

DIRECTORS ARE CHOSEN BY BOSTON Y. M. C. A.

The Boston Young Men's Christian Association, together with all departments and branches, held its annual meeting and re-elected to the board of directors for the term ending 1926 W. Irving Bullard, William C. Chick, H. Bradlee Fenno and Arthur Perry, Jr. Arthur S. Johnson, president of the association, spoke of the progress of Y. M. C. A. work and General Secretary Wilman E. Adams made reports from eleven departments and six branches. Excellent progress was shown, new features, including a high school secretary, boys' camp and the starting of an interollegiate branch.

VATICAN STABLE MAY GIVE WAY TO GARAGE

Rome, June 9.—(By the Associated Press).—Pope Pius is showing his powers of organization and economy even in small matters, drawing the purse strings of the Vatican much closer than his predecessor.

Benedict XV. habitually passed with but little examination the estimates for upkeep, furniture and repairs, especially for the apartments of the high prelates and officials of the apostolic palace. Pius has fixed 400 lire, equal to about $24, monthly for ordinary small repairs, and has appointed a committee consisting of Cardinals Gasparri Merry Del Val and Sbaretti, to examine every detail and see whether it is absolutely necessary.

The Vatican stables, though shorn of their ancient glory, still contain a few old black horses with long tails and the heavy black carriages which are used to transport to the Vatican for court service those ecclesiastics and officials who possess no vehicles of their own.

The Pope is now attempting to ascertain whether it would not be cheaper to abolish the stables, replacing the old equipages with a couple of automobiles.

Only 39,000 Persons Unemployed in Germany

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Special Cable to Universal Service.

Berlin, June 9.—Germany established a new low record for unemployment during the month of May. An indication of how Germany, in spite of the low exchange and the burdens of the Versailles treaty, has gone to work was shown today by statistics published estimating only 39,000 unemployed in the whole country.

In Berlin, a city of over 4,000,000, the unemployed receiving municipal support have been reduced to 18,000.

With Germany flooded with all kinds of orders from the outside world because of the cheaper prices, due to the low exchange rate, the industries group, headed by Hugo Stinnes, is fighting against any upward tendency of the German mark.

PACIFIC FLOUR CUTS PRICE IN BOSTON

Boston wholesale flour merchants are greatly interested in a shipment of Puget Sound flour now on the way to Boston from Seattle in the steamship Walter A. Luckenbach. There are approximately twenty carloads of flour in the shipment packed in half-barrel cotton sacks. The flour, both bread and pastry grades, is being offered to the trade by the Boston consignees for about twenty-five cents a barrel less than the market price for New York, Ohio and Michigan flours of the same quality.

Dealers said the Pacific Coast flour would make some impression on the strictly Boston market, but that it could not be economically loaded on cars for shipments to Inland New England points, as, the loading charges and high railroad freight rates would more than eat up the difference in price.

It is the hope of the Puget Sound millers to make Boston an exporting point for transshipping the products to Europe. It is not improbable that some of the Walter A. Luckenbach's cargo will be offered for export. It was sent by the Fisher Flouring Mills Company of Seattle following a conference between Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and D. Fisher of the milling company.

The Walter A. Luckenbach, which is due here June 16, has 8,000 bags of wool and other cargo loaded in Pacific ports at Boston.

RESCUE SCORE AT BLAZE IN NORTH END

Thrilling rescues of women and children from the upper floors and roof by firemen of Ladder Company No. 1 featured a two-alarm fire at Nos. 442-446 Hanover street, North End, when thirty-five families, comprising more than 120 persons, were driven to the street.

Laddermen John Leary, John Buckley and Denis Condon dashed up an extension ladder raised to the roof as soon as the first piece of fire apparatus arrived at the blaze and carried a score of mothers and their children to safety.

In one room on the fifth floor Buckley found Mrs. Maria Marotta, wife of Salvatore Marotta and her three-months-old baby, Loigi.

Wrapping a blanket around their heads for protection against the dense smoke sweeping through the burning building he carried the mother and babe out to the fire escape and down the ladder to the street.

Mrs. Elia Pasone and her two children, Maria and Paul, who live on the third floor, were among those who fled to the roof and were brought down ladders.

Half a dozen cats, a dog and a canary were suffocated by the smoke.

The fire started in the basement of the building, used as a storeroom for trunks and old furniture. With light ning like rapidity it spread up through the floor of the pool room of John Tambrino and Caigorio Match on the first floor and then swept between the walls, finally shooting up through the roof, five stories above.

STUDENTS FIX $2,500 AS MARRYING SALARY

Burlington, Vt., June 9.—The majority of the graduating class of the University of Vermont are willing to marry, but they consider a man should have an income from $2,500 to $3,000 before he takes the step. Eight members of the class, four of each sex, in answering the questionaire declared that they had never been kissed.

Do You Want "Amrad" to Close Down Earlier?

Do you want the Amrad Broadcasting Station to "shut up" every evening from 8 to 8:30 so that you can hear the more distant stations?

Or do you want WGI to continue on its present schedule?

The Amrad Company is asking radio fans for a referendum on this subject. If you like to "listen in," write to the American Radio and Research Corporation, Medford Hillside, Mass., attention of Broadcasting Department, and tell them which you prefer.

In making your decision, consider these two angles to the question: First, most of the owners of radio sets have only the cheaper crystal sets, which pick up only Medford. If Medford shuts down for half an hour, they will be cheated out of part of the night's radio program.

On the other hand, the more distant stations often have very interesting programs. Owners of the better sets could listen to these if Medford would close up for a while. What is your opinion?

DROWNS TRYING TO GET RELIEF FROM HEAT

Anthony J. Connors, twenty years old, of No. 46 Allen street, West End, was drowned early today from a row boat on the Charles River while trying to escape the heat

Connors could not sleep. He procured a row boat and started out on the Charles. Near the Boston side of the Cambridge Bridge he rammed a motor boat. The row boat turned over and Connors went down. His body was recovered by Patrolmen Roche and Flynn of the Metropolitan police.

BROKEN HYDRANT CAUSES FLOOD IN WORCESTER

Worcester, June 9.—Water spouted three stories high when a hydrant at No. 91 Pleasant street was broken off at the sidewalk by steel girders carried in an auto truck. The rush of water caused a small flood in the heart of the city and inflicted damage in a number of nearby cellars. Pedestrians were caught in the "shower."

NEWPORT AUTO THIEF JAILED FOR TWO YEARS

Newport, R. I., June 9.—James Hammel, alias James Wilson, was given two years in state prison for taking an automobile without leave and for shooting a policeman in Fall River, by Judge Blodgett in Superior Court. Hamel was arrested in Mattapan, Mass., while driving the stolen car. He denied the shooting

FRIGATE MACEDONIAN WRECKED BY FLAMES

New York, June 9.—The old British frigate Macedonian, captured by Commodore Stephen Decatur off Madeira in 1812, was wrecked by fire at City Island today. The old vessel, one of the city's curiosities, had recently been made over into a combination bathhouse and restaurant.

RADIO BRINGS JOY EVEN TO HOSPITALS

The tedious hours don't drag any longer up in the veterans' hospital atop of Parker Hill now that the Army and Navy Club has donated several radio sets.

Many of the patients are too ill to go to the Red Cross Hut where most of the boys get their entertainment. What to do to entertain the poor lads who had to spend months and months within the same four walls was a perennial puzzle for everyone concerned.

But the radio solved it. Now the lads in the two tuberculosis wards can tune up, and listen to jazz, lectures, baseball scores, and dozens of other interesting things. It gives them almost their only touch with the outside world. By means of an extension, and several extra pairs of receivers, the boys can sit on the porch and enjoy the concert.

They are all radio fans now, but especially James Connell and Albert Conrow. And "Miss Cooley's" their favorite nurse, is getting to be a radio expert. Perhaps a course in radio will be part of a nurse's training soon.

Indoor Aerial Possible Through New Invention

A new invention which will revolutionize radio reception and do away with the old cumbersome aerial for good was successfully demonstrated before the Institute of Radio Engineers in New York, by its inventor, Major Edwin R. Armstrong. The invention consists of a device which will amplify receiving sets 100,000 times, and thus make the use of an indoor aerial possible.

It is said that sets employing this device can be manufactured at about the same cost as the sets now using outdoor aerials. The circuit will also detect the wave lengths under 200 metres with ordinary amateur sets. During the past, short waves were indistinguishable for small range sets. By making these short waves available, the cost of operating will be greatly lessened.

Armstrong, who also perfected the radio audion, describes his invention as follows:

"A short way to describe the super regenerative circuit is that one vacuum tube is made to do the work formerly done by three." It has been known for several years that the limit of amplification is reached when the negative charge in the tube approaches the positive. In experimenting I found that it was possible to increase the negative charge temporarily, for about one 10,000th of a second far above the positive and still keep the average down. It is the possibility of increase which permits the enormous amplification." Armstrong said

Question Box for Radio Fans

Send in your radio difficulties. Address, Radio Editor, Boston American, 3) Summer street, Boston, Mass.

A. E., Dorchester—A three-strand aerial 25 feet long would hardly be considered a good aerial. You could, however, use it with a V. T. set with some amplification. If you extend your aerial to your friend's roof, it will not interfere with his reception from an indoor aerial, provided you do not try to transmit. If you use a regenerative circuit, however, and are careless in tuning the tickler, you may also interfere slightly but if you use care there should be no interference.

J. E. H., Wakefield—Your aerial is much too long, and should be shortened. The part of the wire inside the barn is doing very little good, and you will get much better results if you can find room to string a single wire 75 to 150 feet long as high as possible in the open air. You may have difficulty in getting Medford on a crystal set in Summer. I assume that your hook up is a standard one, and all connections and ground are O. K.

J. P., Roslindale—Your hook-up seems to be O. K., and with your aerial you should have no difficulty in getting Medford under average conditions. If your crystal is not soldered, you must be sure that it makes a tight connection with the cup. It would be even better to get some Wood's metal and solder it in. Also try other crystals, as even a treated crystal deteriorates with use. If that does not do you will have to go all over the two circuits and see that there are no shorts or opens.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

Your face, does it wear the contented expression of good health, or are the features drawn and pallid? In the latter case, your story is read by all who see you, and what woman of spirit wants to be pitied for her physical condition? There is a way to get the nervous, tired lines out of your face and the slump out of your body. The use of that standard remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, will strengthen the nerves and tone up the system to resist that excessive fatigue.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE reign of terror, as far as motion pictures are concerned, seems imminent in Chicago once more. The point of controversy at present is the showing of Marshall Nelan's newest production, "Fools First," featuring Richard Dix and Claire Windsor, which was scheduled for the coming week, but which has been barred by the board of censors of that city, unless a number of drastic changes are made in the film.

Time was when a certain Major Funkhauser was head of the board and then were the dark days for movies. Since he has resigned and a new board has been chosen, there has been less quarreling on the subject of what is and what is not suitable for the citizens of the lake city. New York has not insisted on the cutting of "Fools First."

Why, people demand constantly, do we have such poor pictures? The above gives the answer. When the censor boards refuse to let a director of the calibre of Marshall Nelan show his pictures without severe trimming, what hope is held out for any but the Ruggleses and Harold Bell Wright school? There are comparatively few real artists in the film world—but let the helm of their ships—and it seems poor policy to clip the wings of those we have.

MARMONT CHOSEN.

THE FOX concern is to be congratulated on its choice of Percy Marmont for the role of Mark Sabre in the screen version of "If Winter Comes." He is the only one so far assigned to this production, which is, judging from stray bits of information that come out of the Fox Los Angelo, to be "something very special."

Marmont is sailing for England to join Harry Millarde, the director and William Fox, the producer, who are discussing plans with the author, A. S. M. Hutchinson.

"WILD YOUTH" UNDER WAY.

ANOTHER vindication of the A. "wild youth" of today is on the way. At the Talmadge Studios in New York, a new company is hard at work making a film that shows the real worth of modern young girls. "Sunshine Mary" Anderson is heroine of the picture, the youth.

Virginia Pearson, Harry Morey, Thurston Hall, Julia Swayne Gordon and Joseph Striker all have important roles in the film, which is being made under the banner of Ivan Abramson Productions. Miss Pearson is seen as a nurse

THE LAW INTERFERES.

LAST WEEK the International Film Corporation and Nathan Burkan had an injunction taken out against the Affiliated Distributors preventing the showing of their production, "I Am the Law," which was slated for a prominent New York motion picture theatre this week. At the last moment another film was put in as a "pinch hitter."

"I Am the Law," in which Alice Lake, and Kenneth Harlan have the leading roles, is, supposedly, taken from "The Poetic Justice of Ah San," by James Oliver Curwood. The International and Mr. Burkan, representing a large producing company, declare that "I Am the Law" has nothing in common with the original, Mr. Curwood agreeing. The producers have taken material from two other Curwood stories, "The Valley of Silent Men" and "The River's End," both filmed by other companies

The case will come up in court shortly and will be a definite step forward in regard to the plagiarizing and changing about of stories to profit by another company's good work

ABOUT CORINNE GRIFFITH.

THERE is a rumor that Corinne Griffith's contract with the Vitagraph concern is about to expire. That is the cue for the big producers with a weather eye out for a good actress to snap her up. Needless to say, that's what they're trying to do. She is being besieged with offers but has not as yet made any definite plans. There is little question that she will leave Vitagraph.

This will be the second time that a star will leave that company Antonio Moreno left for the Goldwyn "lot" a few weeks ago. Both Moreno and Miss Griffith have been struggling against heavy odds, poor stories, poor direction, and poor support, for months and deserve their chances for actual success with good companies.

PATSY RUTH WITH WILLIAMS.

PATSY RUTH MILLER has been picked for the lead with Earle Williams in his next production. This seventeen-year-old player is carving a distinct and prominent niche for herself in pictures, for she has done excellently in a number of Goldwyn films.

The next Williams story is concerned with a Spanish senorita and a dashing young Spanish-American, with a car-load of money and a sunny disposition, who mig thinks up generally in a South American principality.

DAILY SHORT STORY

AFTER MANY YEARS

By Ella Randall Pearce

CLAIRE'S mother looked around the room which, usually so orderly, now held a confusion of wedding finery. Then she looked at Claire herself, talking animatedly with a young woman of her own age, her most intimate friend, soon to officiate as maid of honor at Claire's wedding

And Mrs. Eleanor Bolles drew a long sigh. It was not for Claire, that sigh, nor for the wedding day's near approach, nor the cessation of the scene. It was for herself.

She remembered her girlhood friend Rita who, after her marriage, had expressed the hope that if they had children they might fall in love.

But no child had come to Rita as the years went by. And when Claire was still very young, her mother was drawn into a social controversy in which the two friends found themselves on opposite sides; and out of that had grown a coolness which ended all friendliness. Then Rita had gone away and the old life knew her no more

GAZED FROM WINDOW.

She looked musingly out of the wide window and her thoughts ran "if I knew where Rita was to be found I would send her an invitation to the wedding. We could afford to forgive and forget now."

Then she thought of the man whom Claire was to marry. A fine appearing young fellow and, as far as was known, a worthy mate for her daughter. But he was a stranger to the town where the Bolles lived; and at first Claire's parents had had their misgivings They would have preferred a match with someone whose past history was more closely connected with their own.

But young Herbert Whitley had come and conquered, and there seemed to be no reason for objections when he asked to marry Claire

"My father can't come to the wedding, but mother'll be here if she can possibly make the trip in time," said young Whitley.

Up to the time when the wedding party started for the church Mrs. Whitley had not arrived. But just before the wedding march pealed forth Mrs. Bolles caught sight of an unfamiliar figure being escorted to the opposite pew. A tall, stately figure of smart distinction evidently known to some of the group made up of Herbert Whitley's friends.

Then the organ began to play and the wedding party met at the chancel and the ceremony proceeded to its close and the bride and groom and their attendants had disappeared, when Mrs. Bolles turning into the church aisle, came face to face with the aristocratic stranger

She was prepared to waive all ceremony and give a warm welcome to this lately arrived guest who had come so far. But she stood speechless and rigid when she saw who the guest was. Then flushing deeply, she held out her hand

"Rita—you've come to Claire's wedding?" she burst forth. "Why, I thought you were"——

"I had to come, Eleanor, for more than one reason. Your daughter has just married my son"

"Your son?" echoes Mrs. Bolles, blankly.

MARRIED TWICE.

"Well—almost." Rita's laugh rippled tenderly. "Herbert is my stepson. I was married a second time. I married Mr. Whitley a few years ago. And when Herbert wrote that he was to marry Claire I couldn't get here fast enough"

But it was after the reception when the two women were alone together, that Rita finished her story.

"It wasn't altogether chance, Eleanor," she confessed. "When Herbert left for this part of the country I advised him to look you up. 'And if the daughter is like her mother, Herbert,' I said, 'there's a wife for you!' And let me tell you, Eleanor Bolles, there isn't a finer young man in the world than my son"

REPORT FAVORS FORD OFFER ON SHOALS

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 9—Three separate reports setting forth recommendations for action by Congress with respect to private development of the government's $106,000,000 power and nitrate projects at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, were made to the House today by members of the military committee.

The task of making a final decision is admitted in each of the reports to be the duty of the full membership of the House at an early date, but recommendations to that end, submitted after four months of continuous consideration by the committee, differ in important respects as they are presented in the documents

Acting Chairman McKenzie of Illinois, who drafted the majority report, declares that the Ford proposal was the only one found "worthy of serious consideration" and asks its acceptance by the House provided, however, that the Gorgas Steam Plant is not included among the projects to be disposed of at Muscle Shoals.

Concurrence in the majority report, except for the preferences made with respect to the Gorgas Plant, is voiced in one of the minority opinions presented by Representative Wright of Georgia, and supported by Representative James of Michigan, and the remaining Democratic members.

They ask full compliance by the House will all provisions of the Ford proposal, including the Gorgas property and point out the belief that if Congress eliminates the Gorgas unit, it would defeat the Ford offer.

In the third report submitted by Representative Parker of New Jersey, and signed by Representative Frothingham of Massachusetts, the opinion is adverse to the acceptance of Mr. Ford's offer unless it is modified in other sections than that dealing with Gorgas

In the event Mr. Ford declined to agree to the modifications proposed, the minority would have the Secretary of War lease the dams and nitrate plans "on such terms as will secure the completition of the dams," and would authorize her too "settle thé fair value of the Gorgas plant and convey the same to the Alabama Power Company."

BONES OF '76 HEROES BURIED IN CHRIST CHURCH

The two skeletons of what is believed to be the remains of two Revolutionary soldiers unearthed in Cambridge were buried today in Christ Church Cemetery, Cambridge. The skeletons were discovered during the excavations for a building at Mt. Auburn and Channing streets, on the site once occupied by the home of Lieutenant-Governor Oliver, and which was used during the war as a hospital for Continental soldiers. At the request of the Cambridge Historical Society and other patriotic organizations, Mayor Quinn placed Edward F. Sullivan, head of the Cambridge Soldiers' Aid Department, in charge of the burial.

KOHLSAAT AGAIN HITS LODGE ON GOLD PLANK

H. H. Kohlsaat's description of the part that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts played in the Republican National Convention of 1856, which aroused the resentment of Senator Lodge last week, is continued in this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post, in which Mr. Kohlsaat reprints a letter written by him on July 1, 1856, to Horace White of the Evening Post.

This letter has the following reference to Senator Lodge and the gold standard plank of the Republican convention:

"The article is correct in every way, excepting that Senator Lodge saw the plang as you have it printed on the Monday morning. He said that it suited him perfectly, with the one exception that he would strike out the two words 'and un'ited.' He thought the plank would be stronger if it read 'we are opposed to the free coinage of silver.' He said that was all the change he would make and asked me for a copy of the plank. I handed him the copy I now enclose to you. His secretary struck off copies, and I understand that Mr. Lodge took them to different Eastern men and said that they had been given him by one of Governor McKinley's closest friends, that it was the plank that had been agreed upon by the McKinley management and would be presented to the committee on resolutions.

"I have been somewhat surprised at the claims of Senator Lodge and Mr. Platt that the East dictated the plank."

These are the only mentions of Senator Lodge's name in this week's article. In a statement last week Senator Lodge took exception to Mr. Kohlsaat's assertion that he had broken faith in giving out the plank.

BANKERS STILL FIRM AGAINST GERMAN LOAN

Paris, Jun 9 (By the Associated Press).—The attitude of the international bankers' committee toward the question of a loan for Germany continues firmly to be that no loan can be made without an entire agreement among Germany's creditors, who in this case would also be the lenders. The bankers at a meeting today will discuss further the text of their report to the Reparations Commission.

MAN AND GIRL KIDNAPED AND "LECTURED"

Anderson, S. C., June 9.—Robert W. Sullivan, secretary and treasurer of the Orr Cotton Mills, and Miss Ruby Floyd, were kidnaped from an automobile in front of the young woman's home here by masked men, who "gave them a lecture," as they described it, and dropped them in the woods some three miles out of town.

Sullivan, an official of the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association, was warned not to be seen in Miss Floyd's company again, he told police, but he denied reports that he had been beaten.

He and Miss Floyd and the latter's mother, Mrs. Ada Floyd, informed the police that the men were dressed in regalia resembling that of the Ku Kluz Klan and Miss Floyd asserted she was positive one of the men was a negro. The couple said they thought they would be unable to identify any of their abductors.

Sullivan recently was taken in custody at the home of Miss Floyd, but no charges were made. A charge of "disorderly conduct" was made against the young woman, however, as a result of remarks attributed to her in a conversation with a neighbor who had complained to the police. She is about eighteen years old.

The masked band came up in two automobiles and four men put Sullivan in one machine, while three took Miss Floyd in the other and rapidly left town.

CUBA WARNED AMERICA WILL INTERVENE

Havana, June 9.—El Heraldo de Cuba, a powerful Liberal organ, which fears financial intervention on the part of the United States, today says, relative to a secret interview between President Zayas and Major-General Enoch R. Crowder, personal representative of President Harding:

"General Crowder went to the presidential palace and made it clear that if by the Fourth of July the Cuban government does not bring about a clean moral adjustment of conditions the government of the United States, reluctantly, will be compelled to intervene in Cuba.

"This intervention will be full and will result in the deposing of the President and the dissolution of Congress.

"General elections will be held two years after intervention, and because of incompatability present members of Congress will be excluded from participation.

"The intimation of General Crowder is indicated in accordance with the line of international politics contemplated from Washington."

U. S. TO PROBE FATAL BLOWUP AT HARVARD

The recent explosion at the Harvard Laboratory, when two men were killed and others injured, will probably become the subject of an investigation by the Federal government.

This became known when Dr. Charles E. Munroe, an expert of the National Research Council of Washington, D. C., said that he would ask the Bureau of Mines to make a scientific inquiry into the possibility of an explosion of oil in contact with high pressure oxygen. State Chemist Wedger, shortly after this tragedy, had given this as the cause of the explosion.

The State investigators were to visit the laboratory today. Their report is expected some time next week.

HARDING LAUDS WASHINGTON'S ACHIEVEMENT

Princeton, N. J., June 9.—The brilliancy of Washington's genius in action and the devotion of his fellowers of the Continental Army undergreat privation were extolled by President Harding today in an address at the dedication of the battle monument at Princeton.

The President spoke as follows:

"We have come here to say the formal words of dedication and consecration before a monument in granite and marble. But we stand to say those words, in the presence of another monument, which is the true memorial to the events we celebrate. The real monument to the achievement of Washington's patriot army in the Trenton Princeton campaign, is not in workings of bronze or carvings of stone. It roars it self in the institutions of liberty and representative government, now big in the vision of all mankind.

"In the presence of such a monument, we can do no better than consecrate ourselves to the cause in which at this place the soul of genius and the spirit of sacrifice shone forth with steadfast radiance.

CROWNING GLORY.

Cornwallis regarded the Trenton Princeton campaign as the crowning glory of the Washington military career; and we do not need to be reminded of the verdict of Frederick the Great, who rebuked the Trenton Princeton campaign as the most brilliant of which he had knowledge.

"When we view the course of human affairs from the detached stand point of history's student, we are amazed to discover how seldom a particular military operation has determined the results of a campaign or the outcome of a great war. Wars are writ very big in history, very much bigger sometimes than they deserve to be. Battles have seldom decided the fates of people.

The real story of human progress is written elsewhere than on the world's battlefields, and war and conflict have provided rather its punctuation than its theme. But among the exceptions, among the cases in which a particular conflict has had consequences and reverberations far greater in their potency than could possibly be imagined from a consideration of the numbers engaged or the immediate results, none stands out more distinctly than does the Trenton Princeton campaign.

FITTING MEMORIAL.

"So you have erected here at Princeton, a fitting memorial to the heroes and heroism of that day. We bring and lay at its foot the laurel wreaths which gratitude and patriotic sentiment will always dedicate to those who have borne the heat and burden of the conflict. Let us believe that their example in all of the future be, as thus far it has been, a glorious inspiration to our country."

POLICE OF COAL FIELDS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Ebensburg, Pa., June 9.—Indictments charging assault and battery were today returned against L. I. FIGHT FIRE ON SHIP NEAR OLD ARMY BASE

A two-alarm fire of mysterious origin in the fore hold of the dismasted freighter Wakanda, at the old Metropolitan coal wharf near the Army Base, South Boston, today kept the fire boats and the harbor police busy several hours. The blaze was discovered by a guard at the Army Base gate.

The hold was filled with paints, oil and turpentine, in flames from which shot high in the air.

The Wakana was sold yesterday to the Boston Sand and Gravel Company, which intended using her

UNTERMEYER GETS STEEL MERGER DATA

New York, June 9.—Thomas L. Chadbourne, lawyer, who negotiated in the Midvale-Inland-Republic steel merger, has purged himself of the contempt charge declared against him by the Lockwood legislative committee when he refused to turn over data on four other steel companies originally contemplating entrance into the merger. Chadbourne turned over the desired data and Samuel Untermeyer, committee counsel, announced the committee now has all the information it desires.

'Love Pirate' Kept Busy Listening to 'Oh, Please Be My Wife'

Doesn't Have to Steal Married Men, Says Girl Accused by Mrs. Bouchie

By HAROLD B. HALL

"I never met a man in all the world whom I would marry. I love no individual man—rather, I love 'em all. As for stealing another woman's husband—why, my dear young man, don't be ridiculous! I don't have to steal husbands. I am kept busy refusing the single men who want to marry me."

"I don't have to steal husbands. I am kept busy refusing the single men who want to marry me."

Thus did Miss Catherine Loughlin of Hull, answer the accusation of Mrs. Mary A. Bouchie of East Boston, who calls her a "love pirate," and who says Miss Loughlin stole her husband, William F. Bouchie, from her. Bouchie was formerly cashier of the now defunct Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, one-time rival of the great Ponzi.

"I am an abused woman," declared Miss Loughlin when interviewed at her pretty little cottage at Hull. "Lord knows I do not want another woman's husband. If Mrs Bouchie's husband wants to be a friend of mine—well, I am not a woman who would turn him away as long as he behaves himself.

"But as for living with Mr. Bouchie—well, that is the biggest lie that I have ever heard told about me. I have never lived with Bouchie and I never intend to. Mrs. Bouchie says I lived with him on Peterboro street; she says I lived with him here. She is all wrong.

"Look me over, young man, and tell me if I look that simple. Do I? Well, I should say not. I don't have to take a married man away from his wife and home. I have had hundreds of proposals of marriage, and have turned them all down. Why should I turn down wealthy single men and then take on a married man who isn't wealthy? I am not one of those Dumb Doras that you read about.

"As a matter of fact I do not want any man. I am not the marrying kind. I do not love any one man in particular. I just simply love 'em all as plain men. No partiality is shown in my house. I don't want any dizzy man hanging around me mooning about matrimony. None of that stuff for mine, my dear. I want to remain free and unencumbered. No wedding bells will ever jingle about my head. No bouquet of orange blossoms will ever be carried down the aisle to the strains of the wedding march by this young lady. No, sir!

"Mrs. Bouchie also states that she caught me in that camp at Wilmington. She says that I was practically undressed. Listen to me. I was fully dressed when she and her mother rushed into that camp.

"NOTHING WRONG AT CAMP."

"There was nothing wrong there. I and a girl chum had hired the camp from Bouchie and his father in-law. When we went out to take possession my chum was taken ill. We asked Bouchie and his father-in-law to stay a while with us. They were about to go when Mrs. Bouchie and her mother rushed the place with a bang. They cut my chum's head open and the blood ran freely. But as for getting us in a compromising situation, she did not.

"This house is my own. I bought it with my own money. I live in it alone, except when I have some of my friends here. That is my own business. My friends are all respectable. There is no man living here. And get this in your paper, Bouchie never has lived here and never will.

"This 's a hard old world for a single woman to live in when married women become jealous of them. What is a girl going to do to protect herself against wagging tongues? I don't know, I am sure. But I guess I shall live through it. At least, I hope so.

"TERRIBLE SCANDAL."

"Anyway, I am not a 'love pirate,' whatever that is. I never met one of those things. Wouldn't know one if I saw it. Let 'em take me to court. Let 'em say what they want to about me. I am on the square and the whole world will know it when I get a clean bill of health in the courts. Isn't this a terrible scandal, though! Simply awful!"

Bouchie, who is living with his mother on Antrim street, East Boston, declares that his wife's allegations are false.

"I have not left my wife for Miss Loughlin. I am not the bad man that she would picture me. I am not living with Miss Loughlin. I never have lived with her. My mother will bear me out in the assertion that I am living at home.

MISS CATHERINE LOUGHLIN

This is the girl who is accused by Mrs. Mary A. Bouchie of East Boston of stealing her husband. "I don't have to steal married men," says Miss Loughlin. "Do I look that simple?"

EGYPTIANS ARE EQUAL UNDER NEW RULE

Cairo, June 9 (By the Associated Press).—The Egyptian constitution under the new regime of independence has been about completed by the committee having it in charge.

The political division of the country remains unchanged, it being composed of Mouderiehs, or Governorates, which in turn are split up into Markas or smaller districts. The Sudan has been incorporated in the Egyptian territory and forms, with the latter, a single State, subject to the authority only of King Faud.

Every Egyptian is given the right to address petitions to the public authorities in his own name.

All religions are free, and placed under the protection of the law insofar as their practices do not interfere with public order or public morals.

All Egyptian citizens are equal before the law, and everyone, without distinction of nationality, religion or language, is guaranteed freedom of civil and political rights. All are eligible for public offices and honors.

The princess is understood to have brought about the rift by falling in love with a young Italian prince.

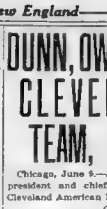
TULSA WILL REGULATE NEGRO EMPLOYMENT

Tulsa, Okla., June 9.—The city commission soon will enact an ordinance to regulate employment of negroes in all public places here, Harry W. Klakaddon, commissioner of police, said today. Yesterday a police order requiring that Tulsa hotels discharge all negro employes, whose duties brought them in contact with guests, was modified by Reese Moran, chief of police, so as to apply only to rooming houses and small transient hotels.

DUNN, OWNER OF CLEVELAND TEAM, DEAD

Chicago, June 9.—James C. Dunn, president and chief owner of the Cleveland American League Baseball Club, died here today.



James C. Dunn

Complications involving the heart and other vital organs caused his death, which occurred at his home here. Mr. Dunn, besides being owner of the Cleveland Club, was a railroad man by trade and widely known in this line of work.

"The death of Jim Dunn has taken from baseball one of its most notable characters," Ban Johnson, president of the American League, said.

"Jim was one of the most popular club owners in the game because he played fair and square with every one. His players loved him and the public loved him.

"During his five or six years as owner of the Cleveland Club he made himself a big brother to everyone in the game. His death is an irreparable loss to the American League and to baseball as a whole."

One of the first things Mr. Dunn did after assuming control of the Cleveland team in 1916 was to purchase the release of Tris Speaker from the Boston Americans for $50,000, a record price at that time, announcing at the same time that he was going to give Cleveland a pennant-winning team.

He fulfilled this promise in 1920, when the Indians, under the leadership of Speaker, won the American League and world's championships.

NEW LYNN SHOE SCALE HITS UNSKILLED GRADES

An agreement between Lynn stock fitters' local of the United Shoe Workers' Union and the Lynn Manufacturers regarding a price list for various grades of work became effective today.

While no announcement of the average scale of prices was made, it is understood it represents some reduction, most of which falls on the unskilled grades, and that the reduction in skilled workers is in no case greater than the 15 per cent. bonus granted under the previous working agreement.

HORNSBY SURE IS A SWEET SWATTER

By WARREN STANLEY INMAN. (The Deaf and Dumb Transcontinental Traveler)

I went to Braves Field yesterday and met Mrs. Oeschger. You know Mrs. Joe thinks "Friend Husband" is the star of the Braves and insists that her stand is right because Joe goes in the box at the opening game of every series and because of the 26 inning game he chucked against Brooklyn.

Mrs. Oeschger is more proud of that 26-inning record pitching performance by Joe and I am sure I don't blame her. If I were Joe I'd never tire of telling it. What a story it will be to tell. I the dave to come when Joe can take his ease.

I guess Mrs. Oeschger was impressed with my raveling record, for she told me that I was the best hiker she over met. Thank you, Mrs Oeschger, that's a very nice compliment from a very charming woman.

I think Rogers Hornsby is the best ball player I have seen in years. He is some swatter.

Mrs. Oeschger couldn't understand why I couldn't get a job, but I told her nobody wanted to or would hire me because of my deafness. She advised me to write plays and I think pretty well of that suggestion. But I must wait until I have the inspiration. Mrs. Oeschger confided in me that she has written several plays, although none has been sold. But she says she'll keep on trying.

I have been away from my home Bangor, Me., for more than two years traveling all over the country in search of work.

I went to a special school in Maine in 1904 and a year afterwards went to a school for the deaf and dumb in Portland. I was a pupil at that school for seven years.

CONNOLLY WINS NET PRIZE AT OAKLEY

By F. G. THAYER.

The scoring at Oakley yesterday was very low, contrary to the results prevailing in former tournaments at that club. There were eight cards below the 80 mark returned. There was a field of 185 contestants.

George Aulbach turned in the low card for the day, a 74, but later, his partner, W. C. Connolly changed the reading on one hole from an 8 to a 9 which automatically disqualified Aulbach from further competition.

Therefore R. C. Van Arsdale, with a card of 75 takes the first gross trophy and F. G. Thayer forfeits his prize for the second gross as he withdraws from match play competition Clark Hedder of Commonwealth takes the second gross with a 77.

The net prize go to W. C. Connolly, with card of 79—11—68, and the second to the winner of the play-off between W. O. Binney of Braeburn, with a card of 85—16—69, and H. C. Buckminster, with a 89—20—69.

The following are the divisions at match play, the first and second rounds being played off today and the semi-finals and finals winding up the tournament tomorrow, the first division playing from scratch and the second and third divisions playing with the State handicap allowance three-quarters of the difference in handicaps being allowed.

BARNEY ADAIR HURT IN MARYLAND BOUT

Frostburg, Md., June 9.—Barney Adair, New York boxer, was injured in his bout here with Jimmy Jones, Youngston, O., last night, when, after Jones had delivered a knockout punch, the New Yorker fell through the ropes on to the ground and landed on the end of his spine. He was revived after a considerable period.

EXETER STARS COME TO AID OF BALL TEAM

Exeter, N. H., June 9.—Capt. Carl O. T. Lundell of the track team and Capt. Thomas H. Driscoll of the eleven, have joined Coach C. P. Parker's baseball squad, the former working for an outfield position, and Driscoll for first base.

This eleventh hour addition may mean a change in the line up for the Andover game tomorrow.

Coach Parker is undecided as to his lineup, especially for the pitching position as three candidates of about the same calibre, R. W. Patten of Amesbury, Daniel Stone of Cleveland, O., and W. L. Macauley of Washington, D. C., have the call, with the chances slightly favoring Patten. Marion A. Cheek of Brookline, hero of the last Exeter-Andover foot ball game will probably hold the backstop position.

Field first, Walber second, Capt. Hatcher third, and "Joe" McGlone short will form the infield, unless Driscoll gets a chance, and in the out field, Weston Adams of Boston, Howard Burne of Dorchester, Caleb Brackett, and Carl Lundell are the favorites.

Coach Parker has given the players a hard workout this week, and there is hope of giving Andover a hard game, despite the loss of the Capt. Van Lengen and Alex Clement pitcher, Clement Coady first base, and Kenneth Lathrop outfielder.

HARVARD LACROSSE MEN ELECT ROUILLARD LEADER

Francis Rouillard of Chicago has been elected captain of the Harvard lacrosse team. He is also a member of the wrestling team and played football last Fall until forced out by injury.

Another stunning surprise of the first round play was the defeat of Harry Vardon, several times American and British open champion, by Compston, who did so well in the qualifying roun. Compston won from the veteran 1 up.

In the other matches Joe Kirkwood disposed of Gordon Lockhart, 4 up and 3 to play; Arnaud Massey defeated Tom King, 5 up and 3 to play, and J. H. Taylor downed Jack Abe Mitchell, James Braid and Ross, 4 and 3.

DILBOY POST NINE WILL PLAY THE BOSTON BLUES

One of the best semi-pro games around Greater Boston will take place tomorrow at the Richard Trum Playground, Broadway, Somerville, when the George Dilboy Post, V. F. W. nine will have as an attraction the recently organized Boston Blues under the management of Otto Deininger, formerly of the Red Sox. The game will start promptly at 3:15 p. m. The overseas boys have been putting out a good brand of baseball and are playing to large crowds.

Leroy Brown Will Lead the Green Track Stars

Hanover, N. H., June 9.—Leroy Brown, Dartmouth's world champion high jumper, will again serve as captain of the Green track team, according to a vote of the letter men today. Capt. Brown has been a consistent jumper for the Green during the past two years, and this past season reached unexpected heights, establishing a new indoor record of 6 feet 4⅞ inches, and breaking the former intercollegiate record with a leap of 6 feet 4⅝ inches. Brown came to Dartmouth from New Rochelle, N. Y., High School.

KAMP'S HURLING DEFEATS THE CONNELLY'S

Brilliant pitching by "Ike" Kamp enabled the J. J. Connelly Club of Roxbury to win over the fast South Boston All-Stars last night at Marcella Street Playgrounds, 5 to 3.

It was Kamp's initial appearance as a mound artist and his debut was made before 5,000 local admirers. He held the Peninsula team, strengthened by the acquisition of Saunders and Cassini, to four scattered hits and fanned six of them in six innings.

The Roxbury boys had little trouble in conecting with the delivery of Kamp, whom they found for ten hits for a total of thirteen.

"Huckalo" Brooks, Danner Ahearn, each connected for a double and a single and between them were responsible for the five runs.

The teams were late in getting started and it was necessary to call the game after six innings had been played.

Dodgers Farm Kopf

Reading, Pa., June 9.—The Reading International League Club announced that Infielder Walter Kopf has been obtained from the Brooklyn National League Club on option.

SWEETSER HAS THE EDGE IN GOLF

Lakewood, N. J., June 9.—Jesse Sweetser of Ardsley and Siwanoy, the medalist, met Dean Paul of Greenwich, in the third round of the Metropolitan Golf Association championship tournament at the Lakewood Country Club today.

Sweetser, who placed a 71 to his credit in the second round, defeated F. B. Richardson of Morris County 3 and 1. The score is a stroke under par for the course. Richardson had a 75. Paul defeated Walter R. Richard of the Engineers, 4 and 3 in the second.

Grant Peacock of Cherry Valley, who defeated A. E Kammer, Baltusrol, 1 up, played Frank Dyer of Upper Montclair in the third today. Dyer defeated Gardiner White of Nassau, Metropolitan titleholder, in the second round 4 and 3.

A. L. Walker, Jr., of Richmond County, outplayed Tommy Armour, all the way in the second round, defeating the Scotch player 4 and 2. Walker had Alfred Bourne of Garden City as his opponent in the third today. Bourne won against W. R Todd, Princeton, yesterday, 7 and 6.

NOT TO ALLOW MARK MADE BY KOLEHMAINEN

Helsingfors, Finland, June 9.—The mark set here yesterday by Hannes Kolehmainen, Finnish-American runner, will not stand as a world record, remeasurement of the track showing it to be 472 meters short of the twenty-five kilometers required.

The record for the distance of 1 hour, 26 minutes, 29 6 10 second, was established by Kolehmainen in 1920. His run over the short track yesterday was completed in 1 hour, 22 minutes, 43 seconds.

Causey Goes to Memphis

Mobile, June 9.—Spencer Abott, manager of the Memphis Southern Association team, announced today he had obtained Pitcher "Red" Causey from the New York Giants and that he expected him to report at Mobile. When Causey reports, Pitcher Webb of the Memphis club will be turned over to the Giants.

MITCHMEN HOPE TO CLIMB HIGHER

By NICK FLATLEY.

Real excitement registered at Braves Field today, when the Pittsburgh Pirates arrived to open a series with Fred Mitchell's flying athletes. These clubs, for no very good reason, are two of the greatest rivals in the game, and when they get together the results are generally thrilling; the hard, tense contests that make baseball the greatest of our games.

No bigger, or better, series was ever played than the memorable double-header crash between the clubs here last Summer, which wound up with a crowd of more than 40,000 going frantic at two sizzling ball games on a Saturday afternoon.

There are no double headers in this engagement, but there are all the other things that were present last August. The Pirates are up there fighting for the lead, an eyelash or so back of the Giants. The Braves are climbing toward the front at an alarming rate, regardless of yesterday's loss. No team can win 'em all.

Both Teams Getting a Lot of Fine Pitching

The Braves are getting a lot of fine pitching, and the same goes for the Pirates. The club is hitting better than .300 while the natives have been crawling toward that figure ever since they packed Dreyfuss in their ear bonnets and left.

The invaders have all their stars on the job, while three of the great Braves are on the hospital list. The subs have been doing wonder work, as the six-game series here proved, losing most of the latter that went with six successive victories.

Rennie now is leading the league with the latest batters prominent among them being Rabbit Maranville, Sammy Bohne, Pie Traynor, Max Carey and Long Jim Bottomley, all of whom are hitting well above the .300 mark. Rennie has been batting in the pinch, and has driven in more runs in the closing chapter of the season than any other player in the league.

Rennie is one of the smartest and best of the new crop of youngsters breaking into the game, and the home folks will have quite a lot of encouragement while he's here.

Young Gooch Has Filled Shoes of Holdout Schmidt

Young Gooch, the catcher shared from the Southern League, has filled the shoes of the holdout Schmidt and has swung the stick as well as Schmidt was rated as the best all-around receiver in the league, and when he returned to report this Spring the wise birds waxed fearful of all Pittsburgh champs. But the Gooch party stepped in and went right on Schmidt's heels in the Corsair lineup, made a big letter, as well as a fine backstop, and that far has created quite a sensation in the big world.

Another youth of great promise is Mueller, who holds down the right-field patrol. He was a St. Louis sandlotter and bundled into the large league with practically no professional experience. Right off the reel he was good enough to keep several pretty good ball players anchored to the bench.

Rabbit Maranville Will Be Large Noise, of Course

Then, of course, young Rabbit Maranville will be the large noise. The Springfield wonder is going along just as well as he did a year ago. He's hitting and fielding in his own brilliant way, and is as much responsible for the team's rise after a soggy start as anybody else in the gang. Boston fans will have a lot of fun watching him for the next four days.

Wilbur Cooper, luliest of south paws, was pressed to hurl in one inning collision, having had great success at the very same job over a stretch of years. Wilbur was in for a battle, as it was Dreyfuss's turn for the Braves and Joe Oeschger's not very best pitching against the Stanky entry.

Joe is himself again, and should get the big four-cocked-hat winning trail which was bowed by McQuillan's upheaval yesterday. Joe has won a lot of laurels on the hill tales, and this is the finest spot he could pick to snatch another.

Mitchell Looks at the Defeat Philosophically

Manager Mitchell wasn't exactly pleased to lose one to Lee Castle, but it didn't cause him to tear out any hair, either. Not that he has too much to tear out. He looks at it in the sensible way, the loss, we mean, not the hatch.

"A team that has a winning streak gets worrying," he claims. "Every body tries too hard to keep defeat away. All players get hurt and pitchers strain their arms. It's tough enough to go along winning steadily, with a loss stuck in every now and then. You must remember that it's a long campaign, and fits of ups and downs is to be athletes keep in trim for the long grind. It would be a wonderful season if we could go along winning six before dropping one. That's too much for any club but you can put it in your little book that we're going to win a whole lot of them."

HUTCHISON AND VARDON FALL BY WAYSIDE

London, June 9.—The defeat of Jock Hutchison of Chicago, British open golf champion, was the sensational feature of the first round of the professional tournament at Glenegeis, Scotland, yesterday. He lost by one hole to A. G. Havers, leader of the younger school of professionals in England.

The champion won the first hole in three, getting down a six yard putt. Tavers squared at the third. From then on the advantage changed hands several times, until they were all square at the eighteenth, where Havers holed a four-yard putt for victory

Another surprise of the day's play was the defeat of Harry Vardon in the first round by Compston, who won from the veteran by one up. Vardon was a several times American and British open champion.

In one of the other matches Joy Kirkwood, the Australian champion, who won the qualifying medal yesterday, defeated Gordon Lockhart up and 2 to play. Arnaud Massy, former French title holder, defeated Tom King, 5 up and 3 to play. J. H. Taylor beat Jack Ross, 4 and 3.

Abe Mitchell was victor over H. C. Jewell, 2 up and 1 to play. George Duncan, Mitchell's partner, defeated Mehr Ali in a contest that went to the seventieth green. Ted Ray beat Hugh McNeill 1 up, while George Gadd disposed of H. C. Jolly, 2 up.

The triumph of Havers over Hutchison was short lived, as he was defeated in the second round by Anderson.

GOLF VETERAN REAL CHAMPION

Harry Richmond

The first New England senior golf champion is Harry J. Richmond, one of Woodland's old timers. He proved to be the dark horse of Wednesday's tournament at Woodland. Harry is a natural born athlete and although he is 62 years old, his young, vigorous, and youthful appearance belies his age.

He is the president of the Carpet Golfers' Association and in 1911, 1912 and 1913 he was the champion.

QUIGLEY TO HAVE COLLEGE BERTH

Ernest Quigley.

Ernest "Oesophagus" Quigley, big league baseball umpire, becomes a big league football umpire this Fall.

He is to honk the umpire's horn in the annual gridiron clash of the Harvard and Yale elevens at the Yale Bowl, New Haven, and for a stranger to Eastern college athletics Ernest "Oesophagus" is busting in big.

A Harvard Yale officiating assignment is considered the goal for which all Eastern grid officials strive, and when an outsider breaks right into that company on his first Eastern appearance, he draws the envy of all the whistle-whistlers and horn-honkers of the section.

Ernest Oesophagus umpired the Harvard-Oregon game at Pasadena, California, two years ago, and made such a hit with the Harvard powers-that-be that efforts to secure him as an official have been made several times since the Oregon game.

HARVARD AGAINST HOLY CROSS TOMORROW

Another whirlwind clash is in store for the collegiate baseball followers when Harvard journeys to Worcester on Saturday determined to get even with Holy Cross.

At the Cambridge University one is able to hear the first rumblings of the thunderous cry, "On to Holy Cross and victory!" The commuter stands in awe of Eddie Goode, who will do the mound work for the Crimson. He is a hero in the eyes of the Harvard baseball fans, even at this date. What will he be if he makes the Worcesterites haul down their purple banner?

There is some talk that a third game may be played at one of the big league parks in Boston.

Mogan or Carroll, or whoever else is the choice of Jack Barry to do the Purple's hurling, will call on everything that he has to turn back the Crimson's attack.

Harvard lost to Holy Cross on May 10 at Soldiers Field with Horan and Goode facing each other. It was a tough game to lose for Harvard, and a great game for Holy Cross to win. Harvard had a lead of one run until the ninth when "Punk" Gazzuireau got mad and clouted one of Goode's curves for a three-bagger.

This will make the fourth time that Goode has pitched against a Purple team and the third time that Horan, if he goes in, has been his opponement. Two years ago at Fitton Field, Goode took Horan for the count when Jeffries knocked a game in the ninth with no one on, but his run proved to be sufficient to kill the Purple hopes.

Out at Soldiers' Field yesterday Jack Slattery, who went to New Haven to scout the Yale-Holy Cross game which Holy Cross won, could be seen in earnest conversation with Captain "Jacko" Conlon, Harvard's night-be-big-leaguer. That is a bad sign for the wearers of the purple, for when these two strategists get their heads together one can depend on it that something worth paying attention to will result.

If Holy Cross starts Carroll Harvard will face one of the coolest youngsters in the game who has lots of stuff and the ability to put it across.

MRS. MALLORY IN LONDON FINALS

By Universal Service.

London, June 9.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American women singles champion, easily defeated Mrs. Edington in the semi-final round of the North London championships. The sets were 6—4, 6—0

The American star will play Mrs Beamish in the finals and will endeavor to turn the tables, as Mrs. Beamish defeated her about a week ago in her first appearance here.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Edith Sigourney were successful in the third round of the doubles, eliminating Miss Hibbert and Miss Brooke. The sets were also 6—4, 6—0

CALZA INJURES THE DANISH WRESTLER

George Calza not only defeated Hal Christensen at the Grand Opera House last night, but missed him so badly that he was unable to continue the match.

Considerable booing greeted the announcement that Christensen had forfeited the second fall, but when Referee Sam Smith diplomatically explained that the Danish heavyweight had been injured and the match awarded to Calza the crowd left the building quite satisfied.

Oris Vadalfi, Italian heavyweight, performed a feat worthy of mention. He threw Frank Pressburn, German heavyweight, in 8 minutes and 40 seconds, and then tossed Frank Larlek, pride of Cambridge, in 14 minutes and 2 seconds.

Where you find VALUE not only in Price but QUALITY

With Blue Serge or Flannel Coat

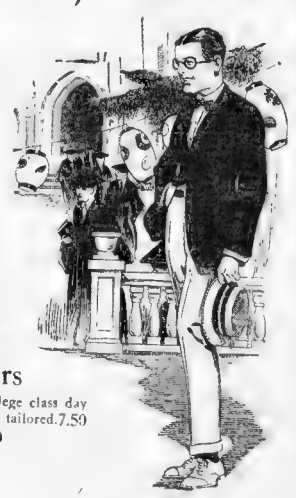
It would be difficult to find summer apparel more suggestive of coolness and comfort on a hot day than an all white silk shirt, white trousers, white buckskin or white canvas shoes and a straw hat.



Why call it the Awkward Age?

"Can't seem to find a Suit of Clothes that will fit that son of ours!"

Said a friend of mine at the Country Club the other day as a long legged high school Senior strolled out to watch the ponies. "He's at the awkward age, I suppose!"

"Awkward age, nothing," I retorted. "He simply hasn't got the right clothes—that's all. You send him down to the Jordan Marsh Men's Store and ask for the Youth's department. Let one of the experts fix him up with one of those new Norfolk Jacket Suits!"

A few days later I saw "Junior" again, and he looked like a different lad. Straight, slender and youthful, but manly! There's a big difference between a "mannish" suit on a youth of 19 or 20 and a "manly" suit. This Youths' Shop at Jordan's specializes on the cut and style that eliminates the awkward age from Youths' Clothing.

By the way, this section is selling a snappy sports suit of light weight cheviot and unfinished worsted for 32.50 that illustrates just what I mean—belted back, patch pockets and two pairs of long trousers!

Yours for better apparel.

JOHNSON SAYS HE IS READY TO TACKLE DEMPSEY FOR TITLE

NEEDS 3 MONTHS TO GET INTO SHAPE

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Johnson would be ready to enter a ring with Jack Dempsey if given three months in which to get himself into condition. The man who says he sold his title to Jess Willard at Havana declares he has been training quietly for more than a year and that he's now physically fit. He asks three months time to harden his muscles, increase his wind, gain speed and to get his famous right hand uppercut working once more.

The letter from a Johnson and Wills booster, published in yesterday's Boston American, has stirred up tremendous interest in the heavyweight division. It has convinced fight fans that one of the star negro boxers is the only suitable opponent for Dempsey.

So would Bill Brennan, Fred Fulton, Harry Greb, Bob Martin or any of the other white heavyweights who have been mentioned as a possible opponent for the heavyweight king.

It is the opinion of a vast number of fight fans that either Jack Johnson or Harry Wills would have a chance of conquering the mighty Dempsey. There would be a world of interest in a ring battle between Dempsey and either Johnson or Wills.

The suggestion that Johnson and Wills meet in order to determine which man has the better right to meet Dempsey appears to be a good one. Even though Johnson says he is fit and also looks the part, it would be good judgment to have him battle a great fighter like Wills before being pitted against Dempsey and his bone-breaking punches.

There is a tendency in certain quarters to condemn Johnson for all time because he did wrong in the past. The Johnson who visited Boston recently appeared a different type of man than the one who fled from this country to Europe while still heavyweight champion of the world.

Jack still has a flock of high speeding motor cars and enough red wine to make a regular king green from envy, but nevertheless he is living a rather tame life.

Johnson was a wonderful entertainer when he first won the world's championship. Upon his return to the United States from Australia he went on a vaudeville tour. He was a riot when he hit New York as the star at the Hippodrome.

And Jack was generous. He had half a dozen barrels of wine rolled in back stage so that his friends and wet wishers might be merry. After his act, Johnson clinked glasses with the boys and then played for them on his banjo. He danced and told stories and in other ways proved the mirthful value of good French wine.

There was nothing of the piker in Johnson's makeup. The dough came easy and went with less effort. There was a trail of gold and empty wine barrels behind Johnson every where he went.

But when Jack got into his jam with the Federal authorities at Chicago, the wolves clipped him for all he had. They finally handed him a couple of tickets for Europe by way of Canada, and told him to beat it to Paris. He landed there broke and finaly managed to pick up some money from music hall dates.

Jack did a little better later when he went twenty rounds with Frank Moran of Pittsburgh.

Johnson soon found himself broke again. He then claims he received an offer to sell his title to Jess Willard in a fake bout at Havana. Jack needed the dough and fell.

The dethroned ring king has done well in more ways than one during the past six months. He's out with the big money once more. Every where he has appeared in vaudeville they've jammed 'em in to the exits. And he's opened a bottle of wine here and there. No more the half dozen barrels. Just a few quarts so that the boys will know his heart is still in the right place.

"I am sad," said Jack. "But let anybody who hasn't tripped at least once be the first to toss the first boxing glove in my direction."

Furthermore when it comes to rating fighters, one should not place too much stock on w'ether they attend Sunday school and such things.

Can he punch?

Can he take a wallop?

Has he got a fighter's heart?

These are the big questions.

And as Johnson seems to qualify in these respects, he should be elected a member of the heavyweight league.

FLAINAGAN SURE ONE BUSY BUD

James E. Flanagan, manager of the Malden Knights of Columbus team of the Boston Twilight League, is a busy young man. Besides being general boss of the Malden team he is secretary of the league and has days of endless toil.

The Malden Caseys can boast of a wonderful baseball club. Flanagan has been blessed with some fine ball tossers, namely, Bill Dempsey, who covers the left field garden; Gordon Frunn, home run hitter of the Twilighters, playing centre; Berube, at third; Lt. Uraan, shortstop; Lowenstein, second, and Cronin, former New England League player, playing first base.

James Flanagan

The twirlers are Glennon and Queen, and both are just now at their best and are being handled by Connie Murphy who is rated as one of the best backstops in the league.

GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

Second growth hickory is getting as scarce as hens' teeth. Something must be done to stop the pace-setting soaring prices in both irons and drivers and the answer is right here.

To reproduce a golf club so that it will be the exact replica of the favored broken one in giving the new shaft a perfect balance and feel, with the proper amount of whip and rigidity, tapered to a T like the old one, with the grain of the shaft running in the right direction and a number of other considerations which only a real good club maker understands—is a trick, but few professionals can master at least where the wood shaft is to be manipulated.

This is not so with the new steel shafts which are now on the market and are as sure a permanent institution in the royal and ancient game as hobnails are on shoes. The tubular steel shafts now being socketed into iron and wood heads are next to indestructible.

They ensure the long life of a new club which is as valuable in its service to the user as a child is dear to its parent.

How many times we have heard the old alibi—"If I could only get a driver like the one Campbell or Duffy made me." The consciousness on the part of the player of the assurance of a good shot with a certain club is half the battle in any golfing fray.

The steel shaft is always the same, its action is a positive integer, never varying when the same amount of force is applied. At least that's what the experts say and a trial will prove the statement.

You can break the head of a club but the shaft is still intact. Wet weather will not be so likely to weaken the steel shafting club which cannot be said of the hickory, the winding becoming loose on the neck of the club when thoroughly wet and thus weakening the whole club, which may spell disaster at any moment with the right tension when the club hits the ground.

In a steel shafted club the balance is not distributed along the whole shaft as in the wooden model, or at least, it does not give this feeling to the one using it, for the player seems to get the impression that the balance is right at the head and the control of the lower is more assured.

Perhaps this is the reason that with the steel more accuracy can be accomplished.

The Western Golf Association has handed down a favorable report for the steel shafted clubs and cannot find any radical departure in its construction or the work it does to warrant its being barred. The U. S. G. A. ruled against the steel but will probably reverse the decision another year unless it is found that the steel shafts favor a player in comparison with the wood shafts.

By RINGSIDE.

Ting-a-ling!

"The Braves lost!"

"Whothehell cares whether they did or not!"

Just like that.

Sort of rough we thought as we clung onto the receiver of the phone, a little weary from passing out baseball information.

"You're right," came back the voice.

"Don't think everybody in the world is a baseball nut," went on the voice. "I didn't ask for the baseball score.

"I'm a different species of nut—a fight nut if you please."

"Just rallied up to say a few words in behalf of Jock Malone."

"Such a fresh young man," came back the voice.

"As I was saying," continued the voice, "Malone is quite a fighter. He's ready to win the world's welterweight and middleweight titles. He could outbox Jack Britton and knock Johnny Wilson out."

"What kind of a nut are you anyhow," we said, using Joe McCarthy's best tone of voice.

"As I was saying," continued the voice, "this Malone person is quite a fighting man. Didn't he defeat Panama Joe Gans, Augie Ratner, Louis Bogash and everybody else who would fight him in Boston?"

"You disgust me," we shouted.

"A good word is disgust. Makes me think how Malone and I felt when we heard about Mickey Walker telling the world what a great fighter he is. I believe it said something about Malone. Because Mickey knocked out Pal Reed, he thinks he's king of the welters and middleweights. Makes one laugh, doesn't it?"

"You poor fish. What's all this bunk for anyhow?"

"Rather rough way to talk to a friend. Anyhow, Malone is fit and will fight Walker any place, any time and under any conditions. So long!"

* * *

"Hey there, operator, who the, oh, please tell me where that call was from?"

"Just a moment please."

"From the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York. Nate Lewis wants to know how the fish are biting in the Frog Pond."

IT'S MY STORY

By JACK CAVERLY.

I WAS a guest at the annual outing of the Horseshoers' and Blacksmiths' Guild, some six years ago. When a kid I thought I knew how to pitch horseshoes, but I saw the sport advanced to a high art at this picnic.

A hurry hoof cobbler stared the game. He pulled two shoes off a Percheron stud he drove to the picnic and busted the stake with his second shoe. There were two others on his team, and they busted every stake on the grounds, including Jeremiah McCarthy's blacksmith, which was cut in sections to finish the first set.

It was at this tense moment that Johnnie Murray, present holder of the record, announced he was going to pitch if he had to hang his shoes on the flagpole. A jersey cow was corralled and Murray was awarded the grand prize when he hung four mule shoes on the bovine's horns, without damaging the carcass or interrupting her grazing. That's true.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES ABOUT "FIXED" RACES AT NEW YORK

LINK GAMBLER'S NAME WITH JOCKEYS

Sensational charges about "fixed" horse races at New York State tracks have followed in the wake of the investigation of the great Ward killing mystery.

The Jockey Club has a complete report of the races which are claimed to have been "fixed." Throughout the name of Arnold Rothstein, master gambler, prominently in connection with his "fixing" of the 1920 World's Series. He is a prominent figure at race tracks, ball parks and fights.

Rothstein, it is said, is the richest gambler in America. He is known as "The Betting King."

These reports were submitted by J. J. Cunningham, a prominent figure in the great Ward killing mystery.

Cunningham is the man who was jailed following his telling one story to the Boston American regarding the Ward case and another version to the authorities investigating the great Ward killing mystery. By reason of the fact that it was admitted at the time in several quarters that Cunningham ever had been employed as an investigator at various race courses, the Boston American today shows that he did serve in that capacity—that it is admitted he has been employed by the Jockey Club.

Intrigue, "fixing" of races, scandalous circumstances and gambling deals of sinister cast are alleged in the reports. An official of the Jockey Club admitted having received the reports during 1920—a year when much rumor was rife concerning the honesty of New York racing policies.

Rothstein, aside from denying flatly all the allegations—which he was permitted to read—had no statement to make. He characterized the chronological reports submitted to the Jockey Club as "absurd." Rothstein was barred from several race course clubhouses in 1920 but subsequently was reinstated.

Johnny Loftus, whose name is mentioned often in the Cunningham reports, was firm in his denial that he had worked in the interests of Rothstein. Excerpts from a report of March 28, 1920, signed by Cunningham under the name of "Vincent Marks" tell of an alleged offer made to Loftus to meet the "boss," who was characterized as Rothstein. Cunningham, aside from serving as an operative for the Jockey Club, was at one time in the employ of Commander J. K. L. Ross, wealthy Canadian sportsman and owner of Sir Barton. The report reads:

"Operative accompanied by his wife on this date (March 28, 1920) visited Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Powers at Brookdale Farm, Red Bank, N. J."

"During the day a conversation came up between Vincent Powers, James Owens, trainer for Mr. Whitney and operative. Johnny Loftus was the subject and Powers mentioned that it was his belief that John's punishment was entirely justified. He said it wasn't so much what Loftus did as it was becoming mixed up with Arnold Rothstein.

"Operative mentioned the fact that he knew Loftus was mixed up with Moe Solinsky, but could not say that Rothstein had any dealings with Loftus. Powers then said he was certain Loftus and Rothstein had dealings, and when asked for details told the following tale:

"That when Loftus was stopping at the Commodore (the same time operative was a guest there) Powers went to Moe Solinsky's room in response to an invitation of Solinsky Loftus was present as well as Nemo Levy. Solinsky and Levy Powers that they could make him a lot of money and provide him free of charge with entertainment and the like of which he never had enjoyed.

The report goes on to allege that Powers pretended that he was intoxicated; that Powers was instructed by Solinsky to refuse ostensibly to accept the proposition of an alliance with Rothstein, but was advised further to leave the room as though to retire, and the repair to the lobby, where he would be joined with Levy, who was to take him to Rothstein. The report added:

"Levy took him to what Powers called a delicatessen store, where Rothstein was introduced. Rothstein told Powers that he could put him in the way of making a lot money, not only through following instruction as to his own races, but also by influencing other boys who rode on the flat. He stated that he would give Powers twice as much as any other operator would offer and give him as much protection as could be had.'

"Powers then answered that if Rothstein could show him something real big, he might listen to him. Rothstein then replied that there were two owners and trainers owning big stirings who consulted him on every race they entered and would instruct their riders anw way he told them. Powers answered that at any time he desired to do busines he would get in touch either with Levy, Solinsky or Rothstein. Rothstein said not to bother with Levy, as he was only a go-between between himself and Solinsky."

Tomorrow The Boston American will print the reports of Cunningham on methods pursued in the alleged "fixing" of races and other startling circumstances in turf circles.

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful, young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Dr. Bretherick, the family physician, advised Remember to go to California. This she did, writing her parents a fictitious tale of having married and lost her "husband." She is thrown in with a movie company, and Tom Holby, leading man, gets her a chance. She makes a hit in a close-up picture and is out in a terrific desert sand storm. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is stirringly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest novel. Go on with the story.

BUT Mem knew better. She was too tired to eat. She wanted to lie down and never get up. Leva guided her to the bungalow and left her

Just to be cool. Just to be still. Were paradise now. After a time a porter brought her her suitcase. Leva had managed to find it. But Mem was too weary to change her clothes. She dropped into a chair by a window and watched the first star suddenly shimmer as if a jewel had been tossed from somewhere on the sky. Other stars twinkled into being here, there, there, like the first big drops of rain, and soon the whole sky was spattered with them.

The moon that had lurked in the blistered air all day unseen turned up her lamp and carried it somewhere into the sea beyond the shore of the horizon, carried the sky with it star by star. The moon went relentlessly, but the Milky Way seemed to gleam with added radiance when she was gone. The lights in the houses made stars on earth and gave companionship to the dreamy night.

At length Leva came along the path, a shadow detaching itself from other shadow. She was full of high spirits. There had been great hilarity in the dining room of the Desert Inn. She was still restless, and she urged Mem to come with her and bathe in the hot springs of the Indian reservation

Mem was enough restored by now to feel the distress of the sand that filled her hair and her clothes. The prospect had a tang of wild adventure, and she went along, taking clean clothes over her arm.

They walked through the double night of moon and shadow-studded streets, the palms muttering over them and blocking their way on the irregular paths

Thrill of Horror

At the reservation an old Indian admitted them with an utter indifference to their thrill of terror. Inside the cabin, lighted only by candles they undressed and stretched themselves in the warm water thickened with sand. It crept about them with an uncanny tingling where the stream bubbled from the soil. Neither do I know a single person in any other walk of life who is above reproach. Everybody I ever heard of is full of sin. The Bible says that we all fell with Adam—and Eve. No I suppose it is only natural that movie people should be as faulty as everybody else is. But I don't see that they're any wickeder than anybody else."

"Really?" Mem cried, hoisting herself to an elbow.

"Really. Most movie people are stodgy and untemperamental and nice, everydayish, folksy souls. They work hard when they can, and save their money, and raise families, and have children and spats and diseases and petty crimes like everybody else. A few wild ones make a splurge and get in the papers.

"But if you read the papers you see all the professions and trades represented in the scandals. The other day the front page told about a preacher who ran away with a girl in the choir and left his wife and several children behind him. But nobody spoke about the danger of letting girls sing in choirs. Yet choirs are dangerous, heaven knows!"

She could not see how Mem trembled at this random arrow that struck home. Mem was sorry she spoke and asked no more questions. But Leva needed no further prompting

"I've tried a lot of trades—stenographer, nurse, canvassing for magazine subscriptions, clerking in a store, and just plain home life—and there was mischief every where. Don't believe all this talk you hear, honey, or put it in its proper proportion. There were no movies twenty-five years ago, but Satan is a million years old, and he hasn't taken a day or night off yet. I used to know a piece about 'Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do,' but he has enough left over for busy hands, too. Are you thinking of staying in the movies?"

"No."

"No—"

"You've got a good start. You've made a hit with a star and a director the first day. Lord! I've been at it two years and still dubbing along. Better keep at it."

Could Not Help.

"No, thank you."

"Don't thank me!" said Leva. "I'm nobody. I couldn't be of any help except to find you a good boarding house and an agent. But if you ever come up to Los Angeles—I'll give you the address tomorrow. Don't let me forget."

"I won't."

Leva returned to her book, the turning of every page slashing Mem's mood like a knife. She was thinking that she was not good enough even for the movies

Her sin had led Her to the edge of this paradise, and then drawn her back by the hair. She was doomed to spend a certain time in increasing heaviness, and then to die or to go about there forth with a nameless child at her breast.

Rushing Waters.

Wakened by the sound of rushing waters, she ran barefoot to the window. There was no sign of rain in that hard, marbled sky. The mountains looked as if rain had never dampened them.

She could not think just what their color reminded her of for a time. Then she recalled the burnt sugared almonds heaped in the window of Calvecly's one candy store. Adelaide she loved them! But this scorched, mottled brown mountain range had no sweetness, only inconceivable bulk.

Still the water gurgled. She saw that the yard about the bungalow, soft and dusty last night, was now a shallow lake with waters dancing everywhere. She thrust her head out of the window and drew it in again, for a Jap was shutting the water gates of an overflowing trench extending as far as she could see

It was an irrigation ditch. He was flooding the ground before the sun could turn the water into burning lenses. She was to learn that the desert irrigated yields more richly than rich soil untended, just as common human soil responds with miracles to lavish floods of encouragement

A boy from the main building of the hotel came skipping across the lawn to waken Leva, who must be up betimes. Mem would not yield to her appeals that she should come along and resume the moving-picture work. She would taste no more of the forbidden cup.

Put Aside Temptation.

She put aside especially the temptation to be near Tom Holby and to taste the wine of his approval and his thoughtfulness. Temptation, like love, follows who flees

Mem went back to bed, but, goaded by discontent, rose, bathed, and dressed, and went to the hotel for breakfast, determined that she would inquire at once the way to the Rundles ranch and take up her humble future before her funds were further diminished

The dining room was deserted save for one man, and that was Tom Holby.

"Hello!" he cried. "Come sit with me. You're not working? Neither am I. I'm a gentleman till this afternoon. They're taking shots that I'm not in, so I slept late. Our poor star, Robina, is out in the gas stove, turning herself into a firecracker while I loll at ease

"She is being kidnaped today by a roving band of bad Arabs. I was just starting to rescue her yesterday, disguised as a sheik or something, when I fell in with the fannine mob. I rescued her last week up on the lot in Los Angeles"

Mem looked so bewildered that he explained: "You see we built a whole Arabian street on the lot, and I broke in and broke out and broke up all the furniture, tearing Robina from the villains. Then we came down here to take the scene of her capture. You'll get used to this upside down business when you've been in the movies a while longer."

"I've been in them as long as I'm going to be."

"Oh, no, you haven't!" Holby laughed. "I wouldn't blame you for quitting if every day were like yesterday, but you got the worst of it at the first. You never known a day like yesterday, but you'll no be likely to have another in a thousand years."

"I loved it."

No Lie Occurred

"Then why are you quitting?"

She could not tell him the truth and no lie occurred to her, so she simply drew a veil across her eyes and left him to his own surmises.

It was not his nature to persist when a woman rebuffed him, even though that was a rare experience with him. He waived the mystery as her own affair, and spoke up cheerily:

"Order a good breakfast and come with me to the Palm Canon They say it's glorious. It will buck you up and save me from the horrors of solitude."

He took an unfair advantage of her by appealing to her charity again. It was the best way to tyrannize over her.

She consented for lack of ability to imagine a polite excuse, and finished her breakfast while he went in search of a car.

He came back with a rusty flivver which he drove himself

There were seven miles of road winding in all directions, especially up and down. She praised Holby for the skill with which he kept his hands and feet playing.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED COUPLE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1922 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"AT the time, however, it didn't look as if there were any design except to drive me mad. Dick saw how wild I was with feelings that were too much for me, and—he played on them!

"Whenever he took me out, he'd make little tests of me by asking favors—such as for me to work after hours in his office staying out his books. And if I'd refuse, he'd say that he had originally intended taking Miss Harrison out that evening but that if I'd work at the office he'd come there and call for me. To keep him from her I was ready to do anything—anything do you understand, Anne?"

"I'm afraid I do," I replied, suffering without any realization that I was talking to the dignified God dess of Liberty girl. "You poor lonely, miserable little thing. It wasn't fair for you to be hurt like that, so hard pressed. It just wasn't fair."

"Oh, yes it was fair enough. You see, I did it myself by letting jealousy get the better of me. I worked in the office night after night—sometimes until I was so tired I ached. And I kept it up even after I realized that Dick was sneering at me for being an easy mark. He told me frankly that I attracted him, but that, of course, he would not have a chance to affiliate himself by marriage as well as through business with a family like Miss Harrison, could throw all that away. And I couldn't say a word. Pride stopped me. But I kept on working for him nights just to be near him. Can you see how I tortured myself?"

"Yes," I replied breathlessly, wondering what her work had been—if she'd had any part in the strange transactions which terminated in Jim's putting Dick out of the firm for trying to cheat Terry, for carrying Phoebe's account without entering it on the books, and so for playing false to the firm itself. "I wonder if he used you to—falsify the books?" I said aloud.

But Mabel went on without heeding

"At last one night I became suspicious of the work for which I was being used. I felt that I was being made party to—cheating. I faced Dick and demanded the truth. He blazed out, crying that I was jealous of his feeling for Phoebe Harrison, but that it didn't matter to anything. He'd make the little goose and we'd be just as good friends as ever—better perhaps. I rushed out at the insult he piled in his words. He laughed—and told me to think it over.

"The next evening I reached the office early and found over things carefully. I saw clearly then what I should have had sense enough to see long before. Dick had been stealing from the firm—from Mr. Harrison. Something in me curled up and died then. I'd managed to go on caring in spite of all Dick had done to me, but when I saw he'd been using me to cheat his partner, to be crooked business I resented it more bitterly than anything that had happened before.

"I think I hated him then. And I made up my mind that when he came in I'd tell him I was going to give the facts to Mr. Harrison."

"But you didn't!" I gasped.

"No—because he didn't come in that evening. He telephoned to say that he was called away on a trip, and he hung up without giving me a chance to say a word. I locked up the office and left. I couldn't go to Mr. Harrison with my suspicions unless Dick were there to fight for himself. I got all turned up. I didn't know right from wrong. I couldn't tell whether I wanted to warn Mr. Harrison because I thought that the square thing to do—or if I wanted to tell on Dick because I hated jealous and would take any means of queering him with the girl I wanted to take from him."

"And all the while," I sighed, "I was trying to make Jim see that Dick West was double-crossing him. I was struggling to get poor little Phoebe free from her money obligation to Dick West. If we'd have known each other—if we could have compared notes—I wouldn't have come so near failure. I couldn't break down Jim's faith until I showed him the check for my savings I'd made out to Phoebe and she'd endorsed over to Dick."

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

The Course of True Love.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I wonder whether you can not help us with our little problem.

CHARACTERS

"B"—His nineteen-year-old sister.

"C"—Her male acquaintance—a fine, upright fellow.

What method would you suggest to cure "A" of constantly insulting "C" when he telephones to or calls upon "B"? If "A" is at home, he does all in his power to prevent "C" from talking to "B," even if he has to say she is not at home. If this doesn't work, "C" is sure to receive as many insults as "A" can think of.

We have done almost everything in an effort to stop this. We have tried to convince "A" of "C's" good qualities, but he says, "All men are alike." We have even attempted to make "A" and "C" good friends, but nothing seems to help.

A FRIEND.

THE girl's brother is interfering in her affairs in an unwarranted manner—of this there is no question. He must be so cynical about his own sex because of what he knows of himself and his weaknesses. If you can convince him that he is being selfish and tyrannical, the battle is sure to be won. If you can't—why doesn't the girl manage to enlist her mother on her side and to counteract her brother's stupid rudeness by the courtesy of another member of her family?

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN CITY

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

JOHN CARTER set his jaw grimly. "You can hardly be intruding in your own house, Mr. Hollingshead. I was just taking leave of Mrs. Brown and apologizing for having insisted on driving her back here this evening when she may have had other plans on foot. I think she understands now. If so, it makes no difference if anyone else does or not. Good night!"

"Damn his impudence!" Richard muttered as the physician strode on to the library, made his brief adieu to his host, and went out of the house.

Adelaide, half way upstairs, heard the imprecation, started as if to speak, then, thinking better of it, went on to Mrs Hollingshead's room

The invalid was asleep, so the girl only paused for an exchange of greetings with Miss Johnson before going to her own bedroom and closing the door behind her.

An old hymn says that "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

Perhaps the fact that Richard Hollingshead was, at this juncture, even more idle than usual may partially account for the fact that he found Adelaide Brown more desirable than heretofore, and resented hotly the idea that any other man might feel toward her as he did.

Circumstance combined to make the young man think more of his mother's attendant than would have been possible under normal conditions. Not only was he too lame to go about town as usual—for the injury to his leg did not improve at once—but convention prevented his attending social functions immediately after the tragic death of his sister. Added to this, all his friends knew of his mother's serious illness and would criticize him if he sought recreation at theatre or other social function—even were he well enough to do so.

Therefore he was thrown upon himself and upon his immediate surroundings for amusement. Adelaide was the only young creature with whom he could associate. She was also attractive, pretty and seemingly indifferent to his admiration. All of which served to pique the young man's fancy.

He would have had what he termed "a cinch" in attracting the girl had it not been for John Carter. Richard had arranged his plan of campaign, beginning with the evening on which he had driven Adelaide across the town to her home. His next move was to be made on the following evening, when he was to go back for her.

But Carter had decreed otherwise—and Richard Hollingshead was annoyed. So long as his mother was in her present critical state the physician would be at the house at least once a day, probably oftener. And each time he would see Adelaide—unless the girl made a point of avoiding him Richard must try to have her do this.

To this end he must conceal his personal animosity toward John Carter.

Adelaide had noted Richard's displeasure on the evening of her return to the Hollingshead home, and feared that he would follow this up by disagreeable remarks with regard to her escort.

She was, therefore, astonished when, the next day, the young man spoke admiringly of the specialist's skill.

"We owe the fact that mother is still alive to Carter," he said casually. "He certainly is conscientious, and never spares himself where his patient is concerned."

He noted the slight flush that came to the girl's face, but pretended not to see it. The pair were in the library awaiting the announcement of dinner. Adelaide had come down here when Mr Hollingshead went into his wife's room for a few minutes before the evening meal.

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Is this true?

"I do not notice young men going to their factories or offices as bright and cheery and vigorous as the last time I was in this country. They seem fed-up. Among the youths, hundreds of thousands of them, I find, look upon it as a calamity to have to work eight hours a day to earn their bread and butter. It won't do."

Very forcefully this statement was made to me by Sir Charles Higham. He used to walk Brooklyn Bridge every day to save carfare so that he could help his mother. Today he is one of the most spectacular leaders of his profession, advertising, in Britain; he was knighted by King George for teaching the British government how to use printers' ink and other forms of publicity to raise millions of soldiers and billions of dollars to prosecute the war, and he is now a Member of Parliament.

He has come to the United States to induce the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World to hold their annual convention in Britain in 1924.

We discussed many business subjects, Sir Charles laying particularly emphatic in declaring that Russia is the key to the world's recovery. But what impressed me most was his short, sharp, incisive expressions on how to succeed. Having climbed from humble beginnings entirely by his own experience. Sample his statements for yourself:

• • •

"Stick to your ideal. Hustle while you wait. Never give in. Play fair. Be charitable to your enemies.

"Be yourself! Never imitate. If you really believe it is the right thing to do—do it. Every act of initiative you exercise makes you stronger for the next decision.

"When they say 'don't try'—it is impossible'—determine to prove them wrong, and you will!

"Don't envy. That's the weak man's fault. Don't 'nag'—grumbling lessens the will power. Cheerful people get cheerful jobs.

"While one lives there is still—opportunity. Listen! It's knocking at your door NOW. Are you in?"

NEW HAVEN TO SHOW A DEFICIT FOR 6 MONTHS

New Haven Railroad is not expected to earn its fixed charges for the first six months of the year, although the deficit is unlikely to be large.

Falling off in coal traffics, owing to the strike at the mines, has been a factor in decreasing New Haven earnings.

The outlook for the second half year depends chiefly on the revival in business and further wage reduction. The 10 per cent. freight rate cut, effective July 1, is figured to mean a loss of about $5,550,000 per annum in New Haven's revenues.

The reduction of about five cents per hour which the Railroad Labor Board has ordered in the pay of maintenance-of-way workers is calculated to mean a saving of approximately $1,100,00 per annum in the New Haven payroll. Reductions in wages of shop crafts also ordered, are regarded as favorable, provided there is na railroad strike.

CONSOLIDATED FIRM IS IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

New York, June 9.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in Federal Court against McAll & Riley Company, stock brokers, by creditors who alleged liabilities of $150,000 and assets of $100,000. The firm has membership in the Consolidated Stock Exchange.

MAYOR HELPS U. S. TREASURY IN LOCATING NEW PLANT

Frederick Krokyn and Ambrose A. Browne, architects of No. 7 State street have written to William M. McMasters, one of the directing secretaries of the Commercial and Industrial Bureau established by Mayor James M. Curley, thanking him for his efforts in hastening the work on the bringing of the National Can Company's new plant to Boston.

The letter reads:

"We take pleasure in informing you of the progress made by the New Haven Railroad in connection with the siding for the National Can Company's new plant on Locust street and of which we are the architects.

"The straightaway work is virtually completed and the switch and signal work will be completed at once.

NEW BUSINESS SPIRIT.

This letter is typical of the new industrial spirit which is becoming marked in Boston.

The building record for the last five months is also illustrative of the same trend toward better times.

The new construction for the first five months of the current year shows 1,038 new construction jobs started with a total value of $26,049,-806, as against 473 new jobs with a total valuation of $7,146,078 last year.

There are signs that the protracted textile strike is coming to a climax soon. In Lawrence there are reports that one of the large corporations will open July 1, expecting that mill operatives will then be ready to accept new conditions.

MILLS RUN STEADILY.

Fall River, June 9.—The cloth market continues quiet, and local manufacturers are holding off on orders owing to uncertainty of price.

Despite this the mills are working steadily, some even at night. Local merchants report satisfactory business.

Springfield, June 9.—The Hendee Manufacturing Co. in May produced 1,000 machines, or just the number turned out in April. This represents an increase of over 100 per cent. from previous months.

Postal receipts are a good business barometer. For fifty selected offices throughout the country receipts aggregated $22,816,951 in May, an increase of $2,313,157, or 14.42 per cent. over same month a year ago.

Although New York contributes 20 per cent. of the country's postal revenues, its gain in May over previous year was surpassed by some other important centres, such as Boston, up $142,500; St. Louis and Detroit.

A comparative statement follows:

	May 1922	May 1921	Inc or Dec
New York	$4,697,154	$4,554,706	$142,447
Chicago	2,784,019	2,506,706	7.91
Boston	1,001,483	917,981	15.08

INJUNCTION ISSUED.

Manchester, N. H., June 8.—A temporary injunction restraining officers and members of textile unions on strike here since February 13 from picketing or otherwise interfering either in operation of Amoskeag Manufacturing Company's mills in this city or with their employes was granted by Judge Sawyer in Superior Court here.

Providence, June 9.—Weave shop of Arctic Mill of B. B. & R. Knight, Inc., has reopened with a small number of workers after being closed twenty weeks. Mill normally employs 325.

DAILY AVERAGE OIL OUTPUT INCREASES

The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States for the week ending June 3 was 1,450,950 barrels, according to estimates by the American Petroleum Institute. This represented an increase of 800 barrels compared with the preceding week.

New York, June 9.—Governmental institutions have received extremely heavy subscriptions for the two new issues of Treasury notes offered.

One of the issues is for one year and carries a 3¾ per cent. coupon; the other, exchangeable only for Victory 4¾ per cent. bonds, runs for three and one-half years and carries a 4¼ per cent. coupon.

Under the impetus of these offerings, both carrying a lower rate than any previous government offering of the same term this year, Victory and Liberty bonds were extremely active and strong.

The Guaranty Company of New York, as head of the syndicate which offered $15,000,000 State of Michigan 4 per cent. and 4½ per cent. bonds, announced that the books had been closed, all of the bonds having been sold.

The Lawyers Mortgage Company is offering a new issue of $200,000 guaranteed first mortgage certificates, due in one to five years, secured by two apartment houses on Washington Heights, at prices to yield 4½ per cent.

Kingston, Ont., June 9.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to build a spur line into the feldspar mining district near Thirteen Island Lake.

Protect Our Soldiers or Punish Traducers

The charge is being made by the head of a certain organization that war heroes are being pauperized and physically abused in Massachusetts State institutions.

If the charge is true there should be speedy indictment and punishment of the responsible officials and thorough reforms of management. If it is not true somebody should be called to account for slander.

We do not believe the charges are true. The American Legion made a real investigation recently and this newspaper has looked into the situation.

But the Governor, the Attorney-General and the district attorney have a duty to perform. They should summon the accuser and demand the facts.

Good Help for France

The Best Help Is Magnanimity

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

A French treaty with Czechoslovakia guarantees 500,000 Czechoslovak troops to help France should Germany start war of revenge. Poland and Belgium agree to supply other troops. If "revenge war" should come—probably it will—France could count on 1,500,000 outside soldiers—if the outside countries kept their word.

This would help the French. But Russia has an army now of 1,800,000 and could easily raise an army of 5,000,000 more.

If the went in with Germany, Russia supplying the men, Germany the arms and leadership, the French allies would seem unimportant.

The best security for any nation is magnanimity and justice in the end. If Bismarck, who was mild, indeed, compared with modern conquerors, had known enough to show himself truly magnanimous, Germany might be better off now.

Better Business Training

Our Commercial Education Needs Greater Care

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Recently over forty young men were busy at the New York Chamber of Commerce taking examinations for the Chamber's Junior and Senior certificates. Examinations covered subjects in economics, commercial science and, particularly, modern languages. The certificates are of value in securing to the holders preference in employment.

The Chamber is doing a service that extends beyond the forty young men who may or may not pass its examinations. The subject matter of each examination is very carefully defined in a syllabus widely distributed by the Chamber's Educational Department. This syllabus, with its emphasis upon the PRACTICAL, is exercising an influence upon the method of teaching business and economic sciences in our secondary schools.

One fault, and a very grievous fault, of our commercial education is that it has been too loosely tied up with the practical world for which it trained. The New York Chamber is supplying a connecting link. We need more business bodies to tell commercial teachers just what is wanted in the business world.

The Strange Ward Killing

Money DOES Make a Difference, Even in Manslaughter

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Two men are concerned, one closely, the other remotely, in the killing of an individual named Peters.

Mr. Ward, the young man who did the killing and who admits that he did the killing, is at liberty. He has money to give bail.

Another wanted as a witness, not accused of any CRIME, is locked up in prison, waiting to answer questions—he couldn't get $5,000 bail.

The difference between money and the lack of money in this case is the difference between jail and liberty, and the curious thing about it is that the man at liberty, because his father has money, admits that he killed another man. And the man in jail is accused of nothing.

More important than that small demonstration of the fact that money counts even in a republic, is the extraordinary fact that young Mr. Ward should be at liberty at all.

It is well-known that the crime of murder is one which admits of no bail.

It is not, of course, proved or alleged by anyone that the killing of Peters by Ward WAS murder. But it is admitted by Ward himself that he KILLED the man. He gives an explanation that suits him; there is absolutely no proof whatever of his explanation except HIS own words.

He walks up to the authorities, saying: "I killed such-and-such a man, at such a time, because he and his associates were blackmailing me." The authorities bow politely and allow him to go.

If a man ragged and poor had said: "I killed a man because he had done so and so to me," do you think HE would have been allowed to go? Hardly.

Mr. Ward may have had sufficient provocation for the killing of the man that he did kill, although there could be no legally "sufficient" provocation unless the killing were forced upon him suddenly and unexpectedly by an effort to take his own life.

But that a man should kill another, that he should tell the authorities of the killing, that he should say, "He blackmailed me," and then be allowed to go and remain at large is interesting and extremely difficult to explain to the satisfaction of the general public.

In many other ways the Ward case is complicated. The other complications are the details of a criminal case. They are not important.

What IS important is the fact made clear to the minds of all the people, of all criminals, of all ignorant and unfortunate, that if you have MONEY you can kill, tell your story and be set free. If you have NO money and are even suspected of knowing something about a killing, you are kept in jail.

That is not a good thought to put into the minds of millions of men in a republic.

Liquor at Ancients' Banquet

Editor Boston American:

I was greatly surprised to read your article in reference to the banquet on Monday evening, held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston; and best to state that you have been misinformed in regard to the references you make that liquor was plentiful at the banquet.

I was present at the banquet from the beginning until the end, and I can refer you to many others who were in attendance to the end, and will say very authoritatively that there was no liquor in evidence in the room or at the banquet. Your article says that a prohibition agent was present and did not find any. I think that should have been sufficient evidence without making unreliable references through an informant of yours.

The object of my comment is for the public good, and for a square deal to the public. And I feel that your great paper should be always ready and willing to give the truth, and deal with facts. Every man that left that banquet hall at the end of the ceremonies that evening was perfectly sober. And I further wish to state that not less than 75 per cent, and possibly more of the membership of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston are total abstainers. Further, I would like to have you state to the public that there was no liquor at the Ancients' banquet. EDWARD C. BECK.

Not Commander

Editor Boston American:

In your account of the dismissal of Harvey T. Yates from the Boston police force on June 1, 1922, you incorrectly stated that the officer was the commander of the William E. Carter Post, No. 16, American Legion. Mr. Yates is not a member of the Carter Post and has never been its commander.

EDWARD L. COOPER, Adjutant.

Care for the Teeth

Editor Boston American:

The teeth of millions are rapidly going to pieces—no argument, it is a fact. Can this deplorable state of affairs be prevented? Most assuredly. Keep the mouth and teeth clean—we wash our hands and faces and scrub our nails with a brush. The Oral Hygiene Committees in various centres are making a desperate attempt to save the nation's teeth, and the tooth brush drill for the children is first on the list. In the name of common sense and humanity, place no further obstacle in the way of cleanliness and self-respect.

E. MELVILLE QUINDY, D.M.D.

Fellowship

Editor Boston American:

In connection with the Jewish problem at Harvard University, I wish to say that a few years ago America called upon her youth, upon rich and poor, Jew and Christian, white and colored. It trained them that they might help in the greatest struggle the world had ever known, for righteousness and justice. It was asserted then repeatedly that the world war was being waged for progress and democracy.

In common with others, I was ready to give my life for America in "no man's country." We bore the brunt gladly, cheerfully, comforted with the knowledge that we were fighting for "God's own country," for American institutions, which stand for liberty, for equality of all men, regardless of nationality or creed.

A great deal is being spent by various organizations to further Christian missionary work among the Jews. The New Testament is distributed to Jews in every part of this great country in bountiful fashion. But the one testament every Jew is sure to read, the one that impresses on his mind most, is the fellowship —or lack of it—of the Christian toward him.

SAMUEL BERNARD.

Injustice

Editor Boston American:

Daylight-saving is a revolting injustice to the majority of the people, especially to mothers, workers and farmers. Why are we imposing that war law when the war is over some years? It doesn't look as if we were in peace time. When the war came we gave our boys and money for the glory and conservation of the liberty of America—and what have we in return? We are abused and crushed by that cruel law! HOUSEWIFE.

New Bedford.

CAN DISAGREE AGREEABLY IF SURE OF YOUR POINT

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

It is well to be so sure of your point of view that you can disagree agreeably with those who do not share that viewpoint.

Intolerance is one of the most despicable of human failings. Its only redeeming aspect is its evidence of interested devotion to the ideas and principles involved.

We can not progress very fast or very far on the basis of indifference.

It is necessary that we feel and care deeply. Otherwise ideas, principles, causes would lack the substantial support of militant enthusiasm, without which even patriotism and life itself could not be maintained with the needed virility to assure their continuance.

You must, of course, believe in your opinions and be ready to back them with some show even of combativeness.

Pretty much like Pat, engaged in hot debate. Duly he brought up unconquerable reserves when he shouted: "Them's my opinions—an' I shares 'em."

If you don't agree with yourself, obviously sharing your convictions, earnestly bringing yourself and your all to the support of your views, how can you expect for them the respect and sympathy of others?

To be a protagonist of a certain viewpoint naturally makes you an antagonist of the contrary position.

This healthful difference of opinion makes horse races, stock markets, choices of friends and spouses, espousals of party and sect, and even the loyalties of religions and patriotisms.

It is at least an indication of human evolution that most of us can differ decently on most of the varieties of human interest and relationship.

Even in religion, it has become possible for men and women to disagree agreeably, no longer thinking it a proof of loyalty to a particular faith if we hate those of different faith.

On the contrary, we have learned to love one another despite even this fundamental difference.

We have made the acceptance of capitalism the modern test of orthodoxy.

For every reason of human decency and social self-interest, we shall have to evolve in this regard also and learn to disagree agreeably.

Herein, too, we must rise to the serene height of that self-assurance and come to the level of that passionate tolerance which once enabled Voltaire to say to an opponent:

"I thoroughly disagree with what you say, and I will defend with my life your right to say it."

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOURS is a nature rich in the finer human traits of character, if today is your birthday, and one that is not without its spark of genius. Although you may never set the world afire (whatever that may be), you might achieve some enviable distinction in any one of a number of ways, and no matter what your achievements, you will have such a host of friends that your life should be a thoroughly joyous one regardless of wealth and station.

Today is one of good outlook for commercial projects, but of less favorable mien for legal disputes.

DO YOU LEAN TOO HEAVILY ON PROMISES?

It does not pay to be too easily put off with promises.

If you know that your cause is a just one, and you see no reason why it should not be supported actively, get at it and keep it going till you have accomplished what you think you are after.

If you need help, do not be too much let down in energy just because certain ones have promised to see you through with it.

The fact that you are to receive help should not be a signal for you to go to sleep at the switch.

The one who carries anything through to completion is always alert and open to the needs and the ways and means of taking care of the needs.

The one who carries through to completion knows that the fairest promises sometimes do not materialize and, therefore, another plan must be in the making if the first plan should fail.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

PROBABLY more than $100,000 worth of brains were massed together recently at a meeting in City Hall on the question of deciding what to do about the rebuilding of the Harvard bridge. Boston's share of "grey matter" was made up of E. MARK SULLIVAN, corporation counsel; "THOMAS F. SULLIVAN, chairman of the Transit Department; JOSEPH A. ROURKE, commissioner of public works; JOHN A. SULLIVAN, former corporation counsel; GUY EMERSON, Finance Commission's engineer, and JOHN CARTY, division engineer.

Besides the above were representatives from the city of Cambridge, including MAYOR EDWARD QUINN, the city solicitor and engineers, which are to be added to the above list, together with representatives of the Elevated road. Perhaps the gentlemen figure that their brains are perhaps worth a little more than above mentioned, but the payroll book figures them up near the century mark.

The Stuart street extension, now under construction, and when completed expected to relieve some of the congestion of traffic in the downtown section of the city, has already cost the city about $1,825,000 in land damages, and before the final touches are put on it the figure will read somewhat over $3,000,000.

There is also some question as to what extent the relief will bring with the above improvement. The city will sooner or later have to build a main traffic artery running north and south as well.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER OF LABOR DAVIS, who is coming to Boston on June 14 to deliver the Flag Day address for Boston Lodge of Elks, will be given a reception at the State House by GOVERNOR COX who is an active member of the lodge.

Something new at City Hall—the open door policy—CITY COLLECTOR WILLIAM M. McMORROW has thrown open the doors of his private office to the general public—hereafter it will not be necessary for those people having business with this particular official to pass the "red tape" test.

GEORGE E. PHELAN, manager of the GEORGE R. WHITE fund, has made a special scrap book, which is embossed on the front cover in gold letters, "Curleyism." Mr. Phelan says he intends to keep in the book the achievements of the Mayor, to prove to the Mayor's enemies that "Curleyism" means just the opposite to what they would like the public to believe.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON MOON'S ROTATION

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I AM a school teacher, and for a long time I have felt compelled to dispute the statement. I find in books that the moon rotates once every revolution. The statement seems to me unreasonable. If I dispute it with my scholars they say, 'It says so in the book.' What am I to say further?"

"Does a squirrel turn on its axis while going around a tree? Of course not. A boy ties a string to a ball and swings it around his head. Does it rotate on its axis? Again no. The ball is at the rim of a plane, the centre of which is at the centre of the boy's body. If the plane was solid it would rotate on its axis, but the rim would not because it has no centre. In the same manner does the moon revolve around the earth. It is at the rim of a plane 240,000 miles radius, and so far as its motion applies, it just simply keeps going with one face constantly forward. Does a round black spot on the rim of a wagon wheel rotate?"

Responsibility of Teachers

Nobody in the world has a greater responsibility than the school teacher. Sometimes it is fortunate that scholars prefer to believe their book. Now, to reply affirmatively to the questions asked above by way of posers and answered by the putter himself in the negative: (1) The squirrel DOES turn on its axis while going around the tree; (2) the ball swung at the end of a string around the boy's head DOES rotate; (3) a round black spot on the rim of a turning wheel DOES, likewise, rotate.

Let us try an illustration. Suppose that I stand in the centre of a room and swing round on my heels. I rotate around a vertical axis through my body. Now suppose I go ten feet away from the centre and walk around in a circle, keeping my right side toward the centre. Again I rotate on a vertical axis through my body, just as truly as I did when I stood fast and simply whirled around.

My walking in the circle does not prevent my turning on the vertical axis. In each case every side of my body, in turn, has been presented say toward the north. That is what rotation means—turning with reference to a fixed direction in space. Rotating at the end of a radius and rotating at the centre are in effect the same.

Effect on Moon

But, coming to the actual case of the moon there is a very striking effect of its rotation visible to the eye. This arises from the so-called liberration in longitude. The moon's orbit is elliptical, and when she is near perigee she travels faster than when near apogee, although her rotation on her axis is almost perfectly uniform in rate.

The consequence is that between perigree and apogee she is ahead of her mean place, and the rotation is not fast enough to keep exactly the same face toward the earth, while between apogee and perigee the opposite condition prevails. Thus we are able to see seven or eight degrees first around the western and then around the eastern edge of the moon. This proves that her rotation is not the same as that of a ball swung at the end of a string or of a body lying on a revolving table. If there was an iron bar connecting the moon and the earth it would be wrenched and broken in consequence of the inequalities between her revolution and her rotation.

Miser Squeezed Dollar Bill So Tight He Put Wave in George Washington's Hair

Now that Summer is here the amusement parks should start doing a good business especially on the free concessions.

Any park can fill its grounds if they print enough passes.

One guy went to Coney Island and asked the press agent for a pass to the root beer booth.

He said, "If you'll give me two passes I'll treat you to a glass of it."

He took a girl to the park and spent all her time at the band stand and around the drinking fountain.

He got scared to death at one time at the drinking fountain. He thought he'd have to spend a penny for a paper cup, but then he remembered that he'd brought a tin one with him.

Once he went out to the park with a dollar and he was so afraid he'd spend it that he took along a pal of his to help him hold on to it.

He squeezed the dollar bill so tight that he put a permanent wave in George Washington's hair.

Every few minutes he'd go up to the lost and found department and ask them if anybody had lost a purse. The guy in the office thought he was honest. He didn't know that if anybody had lost a purse, he wanted to look for it.

He knows the parks by heart. He can tell you in a second just where every free concession is located and how long it will take you to get there.

He stands around the cars of the scenic railway all afternoon waiting for somebody with a ticket to get cold feet so he can take their place.

He thinks that just because he's wearing a last year's straw hat that he can get into the concessions with a 1921 pass.

A girl who goes to the park with him has a wonderful time following him around waiting for somebody to drop a ticket.
